Walter MacDougall exposes himself to young girl at Market Basket

Local resident arrested for lewd conduct

By LISA KENNEDY-COX
News Correspondent

lisa@yourtowncrier.com

WILMINGTON - Resident

Walter MacDougall was arrested last Wednesday for allegedly exposing himself to an eight-year old girl at Market Basket.

The girl gave a descriptive account of the incident, which included MacDougall exposing his penis.

The girl's account, as well as description of MacDougall, matched Market Basket video surveillance.

Following the incident, the 71-year-old MacDougall made a purchase using his credit card.

A Registry of Motor Vehicles photograph compared to the video surveillance was what police describe in their report as "an unquestionable match."

A criminal check of MacDougall shows that not only is he known to the police as a long time resident, but that he has been criminally charged on three separate occasions for similar offenses.

WILMINGTON - Wilmington welcomed the start of a new chapter in the Yentile Farm legacy Tuesday morning, as members of the Yentile Farm Committee broke ground on the 9 Cross Street site that will serve as the town's newest recreational area. As spring sun broke through the clouds overhead, town officers and citizens gathered to celebrate a bright new day for the

The Yentile Farm Recreational Facility, affectionately referred to as

"Yentile Park" by Board of Selectmen Michael Champoux, is set to open within the next year. Town Manager Jeffrey Hull opened the groundbreaking ceremony by "welcoming everybody back to the Farm," describing the ceremony as the "threshold of a new beginning for what many in Wilmington have always known this to be—the Yentile Farm."

Hull acknowledged the many parties involved in bringing the plan to fruition, including the various committees and town departments involved in the pur-

WILMINGTON - The Wilmington Board of Selectmen meeting began on a jovial note on Monday night. The first of two appointments on the agenda afforded the Board a chance to formally meet new Animal Control Officer Christopher Sullivan.

The former public safety dispatcher took on his new role last month. Chairman Champoux, praised his responsiveness to the needs of residents and his track record of responding in a timely, professional, and courteous manner.

The Board was quick to quiz the new officer on his range of services. "Do you deal with Raccoons?" Champoux asked. Louis Cimaglia quickly chimed in, "I've got one chipmunk that's been a real pain—we'll talk offline."

Besides his excellent attention to animal calls, Sullivan is making efforts to bring the department up to date technologically. He recently instituted a Facebook page that will share information about the department, including posting of lost and found pets in the hope of reuniting them with their

Mother saves son from choking after taking Wilmington CPR course

WILMINGTON - A short CPR course made all the difference for one Wilmington family, as Roberta Biscan used information given to her by Wilmington police officers to save her son as he began to choke on an afternoon snack.

Biscan had first taken the course years earlier when her children were first born.

"I really wanted to be prepared as a new mother in case something happened," she said. "I took it again recently because the techniques are constantly changing. Whenever they made the announcement that it was happening for free in town, why not jump on it?"

Biscan attended the two-and-a-half hour course a couple of months ago, never actually imagining that the information may prove necessary.

But on Thursday, a simple change to the type of cheese her son used when making nachos made that training incredibly important.

Will, a 9-year-old at the West Intermediate School, was eating nachos after school with his twin sister, Ayla. Because the house was out of shredded cheddar cheese, Will and Ayla used shredded parmesan which cooled into solid balls and pieces.

"All of a sudden he came around the corner, running," Biscan recalled. "He ran right to me, his eyes were huge and he was holding onto his throat and jumping up and down in panic."

Biscan immediately thought of the police officers telling her to stay calm in such a situation and turned Will around to perform the Heimlich.

"Techniques are different now because they are larger people," Biscan said. "The CPR training is much different from when I took it the first time."

Biscan made a fist and placed it just above the belly button, pushing in and slightly upwards into the ribcage. The thrust of pressure forces air up through the diaphragm, causing lodged objects to expel.

"And it worked," Biscan said. "It worked, thank God."

It took two attempts to get the food forced out.

"You feel a huge sense of relief," Biscan said. "I tried to keep myself calm even though I felt this huge sense of relief and was almost shaking."

Biscan, who has another son, Connor, age 11, has nothing but gratitude towards the town of Wilmington and the men and women of the police department for creating an opportunity to learn this crucial information that enabled her to act so quickly.

Lieutenant Scott Sencabaugh, Officer Julie Pozzi, and Officer Brian Hermann were the officers in command of the training, and Biscan was incredibly thankful to them and their teachings about everything from the

Board of Appeals: Carnival RFP plan moves forward Another grab at the brass ring

By LISA KENNEDY-COX
News Correspondent

lisa@yourtowncrier.com

WILMINGTON - If Daniel Veerman was considered the most hated resident in Wilmington, he certainly redeemed himself at last Thursday's Board of Appeals meeting. After being presented with a modified plan for the Fourth of July carnival festivities by Town Manager Jeff Hull, the Board of Appeals voted to go ahead with approval to hear the 'specific and material' changes at the upcoming meeting on April 13th.

At their March 14, 2016 meeting, the Board of Selectmen provided a status update on the 4th of July carnival that a Request for Proposal (RFP) to secure a carnival operator, initiated by a motion at the February 22nd Board of Selectmen meeting, is in development.

The Board filed a petition for resubmission with both the Planning Board and Zoning Board of Appeals. According to Town Manager Jeffrey Hull, in order to resubmit the application for special permit, it is necessary to demonstrate the application as materially different from the previous one.

The Planning Board considered and approved the amended application for resubmission in a special meeting on March 21st with the next step being the Board of Appeals consideration of the resubmission based on substantial changes at the March 24th meeting, and to subsequently vote on the issuance of the special permit during its April 13th meeting.

Chairman Charles Boyle began the meeting. "The first order of business is in regard to Assessors Map 66 Parcel 1. This is a matter in accordance with Mass General Law 40A Section 16 under Board of Appeals Rules and Regulations Paragraph 3.5.3 for the Board to consider whether the application for a special permit under section 4.1.9 of the Wilmington Zoning bylaw, submitted by the Town of Wilmington for a carnival to be conducted at the Swain parking lot, Assessor's Map 66 Parcel 1, contains specific and material changes in the conditions upon which previous unfavorable action taken by the Board of Appeals was based," said Boyle.

"If I could just caution everybody tonight," continued Boyle, "We're not here to consider whether the petition should be approved. We're only here to consider whether there are changes in the petition that was submitted that would warrant the Board to hear the matter, and, if so, if it's voted favorably to be heard by the Board, it would presumably be heard at our meeting on April 13th."

The crux of the matter is the difference between the Town's application and the one submitted by the Fourth of July Committee back in February when the Board of Appeals denied their application for a special permit to hold the carnival at the site of the former Swain School, setting off a firestorm of debate on social media and around town.

On February 10, 2016, the Fourth of July Committee presented their request before the Board of Appeals to set up the carnival at the Swain School parking lot. The Board voted 3-1, with member Daniel Veerman voting against the application. Chairman Charles Boyle, and members Anthony Barletta, and Thomas Siracusa voted yes. Member Ed Loud recused himself from participation in the vote to avoid a conflict of interest.

"For the past three years, we have been challenged to present a Celebration that differed in many respects from past Celebrations. These challenges have greatly impacted the financial resources that we have available as our events are underwritten by donations and contributions from the carnival," Chairman of the Fourth of July Committee Scott Garrant wrote in a February 14th press release. Veerman had voted against a similar plan in 2013 citing that the Board of Appeals was "not afforded ample opportunity to fully address concerns about the project during the public hearing process."

The request had been made during construction of the new high school, and while the site was understandably off limits, the Fourth of July Committee had hoped the carnival could be run at the Swain School lot, but the application was denied.

In December of 2013, the Board of Selectmen voted to cancel the 2014 celebration altogether, as the high school was still under construction.

In March of 2014, however, in a letter to the Board of Selectmen, Garrant communicated that the Committee had agreed to use the property at the Shriners Auditorium on Fordham Road, with the hope that in the future, the celebration in its entirety would return to the Town Common.

While there were issues to be ironed out, the Shriners allowed the Town to use their property a second time for the 2015 Fun on the Fourth Celebration, including the carnival.

In a letter to the Board of Selectmen dated January 20, 2016, Veerman expressed his personal concern over the application citing several potential issues with the site, his main concern being the impact on the nine direct abutters to the property and what sort of liability, if any, might arise.

In an attempt to avoid complications, Veerman sought to explore ways to mitigate potential property damage. One idea was to procure temporary insurance for the abutters for potential damages caused by third party attendees at the carnival, which was rejected on the basis that liability insurance of this nature is difficult to obtain.

As a result, Veerman proposed an escrow fund be established in the amount of $20,000 to pay for "modest property damage to a direct abutter," and to also "reimburse a direct abutter for any increase in the property insurance or deductible that might be incurred due to a larger claim which would need to be referred to their insurance carrier."

In a letter to the Board of Selectmen, dated January 24, 2016, Garrant informed the Board that in a December 28, 2015 meeting scheduled prior to a BOA hearing held on January 13, 2016, Veerman informed Garrant that he would not vote in favor of the Committee's application unless the Committee, the Town or the carnival vendor, Fiesta Shows, secured a 'bond of insurance to cover property damage that his neighbors might incur by the hand of a third party or claims that might be asserted against his neighbors by third parties who might enter their property.'

While the proposal for raising $20,000 as an escrow fund seemed a viable option to compensate abutters, Town Manager Jeffrey Hull told the Board at that time that he did "not believe the Town should be contributing that sort of fund."

Fiesta Shows also offered to establish a fund to raise $10,000.

At the January 25, 2016 Board of Selectmen meeting, Selectman Mike Newhouse proposed that the Board of Selectmen try and solve the problem. "There should be a financial mechanism in place - the Board of Selectmen should impose certain conditions," said Newhouse.

Newhouse put the issue on the table as "a legitimate municipal expense," for the Town to appropriate funds to 'cover' the other half of Veerman's request, and suggested making it a warrant article to be presented at Town Meeting in April.

A motion was made by Newhouse to move that the Board of Selectmen support the appropriation of $10,000 to be applied to the Fourth of July activities in accordance with an article to be prepared by the Town Manager and Town Counsel, however Garrant was not on board with the vote, telling the Board, "Your appropriation and Mr. Newhouse's comments assume that the Fourth of July Committee has a willingness [to do this] and I'm not committing to that on behalf of the Committee which hasn't had the conversation to fund this account."

At that point, Board of Selectmen Chair Michael Champoux recognized Garrant's comment as an 'implied contingency' telling the Board, "If it's a moot point, then the motion that just we made goes away, and there won't be a need for the article."

Garrant subsequently told the Board in a letter, "Since your last meeting, the Committee has further discussed the issue and, after consultation with independent legal counsel, the Committee has voted unanimously to not agree to the fund's establishment or to [participate] in such a

THERE'S STILL TIME

There's still time to add to your IRA or Roth IRA—even set up a new one—until April 18 this year. (They get an extra day in Maine and Massachusetts.) A Keogh had to have been opened by December 31 of last year, but the self-employed can open a SEP by their 1040 due date with the same contribution cap of 20 percent of net self-employment earnings.

Most figures for retirement plans stay the same this year. For instance, the 401(k) contribution limit is still $18,000, with an extra $6,000 allowed for those born before 1967. Same for the similar 403(b) and 457 plans. For SIMPLE plans the cap stays at $12,500 or $15,500 for those 50 or over.

Where are there changes? The income cap on Roth contributions increases, phasing out at $184,000 to $194,000 for couples and $117,000 to $132,000 for singles. And phaseouts for deducting contributions for a spousal IRA rise to $184,000 to $194,000.

Fiesta Shows subsequently withdrew their offer to participate in funding, following the advice of its own legal counsel and insurer.

The denial sparked anger in residents, many of whom have expressed their disappointment on social media with some residents lobbying attacks on Veerman for his part in denying the petition, that, if approved, would allow the 35-year tradition of having a carnival as part of the 4th of July festivities to continue.

The new application has several "distinguishing qualifiers," according to Hull, from the original. The festivities were originally scheduled to begin on Wednesday, June 29th through Sunday, July 3rd. The Town is seeking to start the event on June 30th keeping it at three days rather than the original four.

In addition, hours for the event were changed from 34 to 25 which is, according to Hull, "a reduction in 26% in terms of the number of hours."

The new schedule is Thursday and Friday from 5:00 to 9:00 pm with Saturday, the day of the fireworks, from noon to 10:00 pm and Sunday from 1:00 pm to 8:00 pm, a significant change from the original, which had the festivities slated until 10:00 pm on Wednesday and as late as 11:00 for Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

"One of the things we were cognizant of is the concern about the hours and going later into the evening, and those hours were revised by design," Hull told the Board.

The new plan has changed from no more than 15 rides to 12-14, and no more than 12 concession booths rather than the original 15 concessions.

"The application from the Fourth of July Committee was looking to use Fiesta Shows," said Hull, "The Town, at this point, does not have a particular vendor in mind. If the Board sees fit to allow this to go forward, we would put out a Request for Proposal, if the Board considers this proposal, we will seek a qualified carnival vendor."

The event is also slated to include extended police presence which is expected over the course of the activities. "We would have police presence on School Street, Middlesex Avenue as well as the carnival itself," said

Hull.

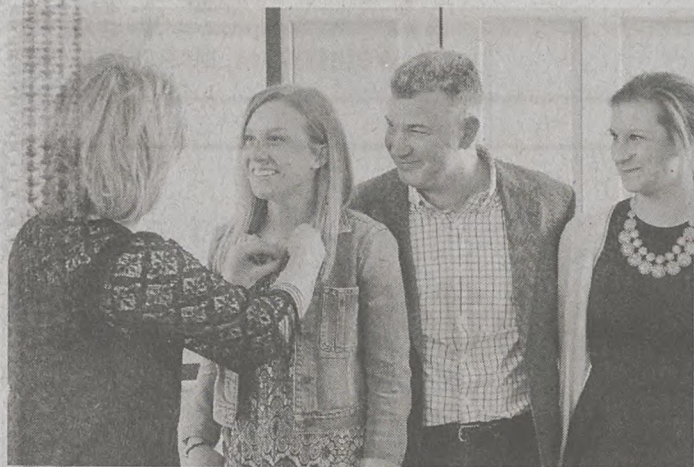

After much discussion, Boyle told the Board, "We're going too far afield. We are only here to hear changes in this petition." Boyle asked Hull if the bid for a vendor would be going out after the April 13th meeting, to which Hull replied in the affirmative that the RFP deadline would be set after meeting on 13th if the petition received a favorable vote by the Board.

Selectman Michael McCoy admonished the Board to approve hearing the petition. "I'll just be brief," began McCoy, "To be totally honest with you, there is a change in this application compared to the previous application."

"Is it a catastrophic change? No, but there is enough change, legally to give the community another bite at the apple, for us to proceed with the Fourth of July festivities. Let's do something good in this community."

With a 25 percent reduction in hours and a 15 percent reduction in rides, the Board voted unanimously to hear the petition at the April 13th meeting.

Senior very active at WHS Pitzi awarded the 'Good Citizens' award from the 'Daughters of the American Revolution'

By BRENDAN FOLEY
News Correspondent

brendanmfoley@outlook.com
LEXINGTON- Samantha Pitzi long ago learned that the past is always present. Standing on a site in Lexington that once rang with the cries and shots of revolution brought that lesson all the way home.

On March 13, Pitzi, a senior at the Wilmington High School, joined a select group of other high school students in receiving the Good Citizens Award from the Daughters of the American Revolution.

"They gave each of us a flag that was flown over the Capitol building in Washington," Pitzi said. "They even had the date of when it was flown and everything."

The Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) is a national organization founded in 1890. Today, it boasts "over 930,000 members admitted since its founding, a vast array of service work, a historic National Headquarters building with extraordinary collections, and countless activities taking place locally, nationally and globally," according to their website.

DAR is a non-profit organization dedicated to preserving patriotism, America's history, and "securing America's future through better education."

As part of that initiative, DAR sponsors the Good Citizen Award and Scholarship Contest, begun in 1934. The award "recognizes and rewards individuals who possess the qualities of dependability, service, leadership, and patriotism in their homes, schools, and communities."

Recipients must be nominated by teachers and peers, with only one student per school eligible for the Good Citizen Award. The staff at Wilmington High School knew immediately who to nominate.

"I work with an organization called iPods for Wounded Veterans that raises money to help buy iPods and iTunes gift cards for soldiers who return home from war wounded," Pitzi said. "And I am Vice President of the 9/11 Memorial Club at school that raised money to help build the 9/11 memorial that we have in the courtyard of the new high school."

For all her involvement in patriotic matters, Pitzi was still stunned when she was called down to the guidance counselors office and told that she was up for a scholarship and award. As a Good Citizen, Pitzi was required to write an essay, addressing the question of, "What does our past tell us about our future?"

In her essay, Pitzi describes with beauty and clarity the ripple effects of the past on the future, and the way that an individual's choices can shape the events of the world. Pitzi describes hearing the stories of difficulties faced by her grandfather, who fought to survive first in Vietnam and then in a hostile homeland that spat on and degraded returning soldiers.

It was these stories that helped motivate Pitzi to taking action with the iPods for Wounded Veterans programs, as well as other volunteer work, like making bracelets for the wives and children of wounded soldiers.

Samantha Pitzi knows she cannot change the past, but through her actions and determination she has worked to make sure that influence on the present is a positive one. The past ripples forward, from Lexington through Vietnam through our own current struggles, and Pitzi refuses to bear idle witness.

As she wrote in her essay, "Our past tells us that we have the ability to change. It shows us where all of our mistakes were and where we went wrong, and leaves us with the ability to make amends to change our future for the better."

Wilmington Destination Imagination recently sent two teams to the state tournament in Worcester on Saturday, March 26. The team "Starbooks Lovers" selected the Service Project Challenge as their project for this year. Comprised of fifth grade students, the team held a book drive at the North Intermediate School, collecting an amazing 2,414 books for Rosie's Place! They toured Rosie's place and restocked their nearly empty book shelves. The team would like to thank everyone who donated to this wonderful cause, as well as their school for supporting them. ## Mahoney a finalist for Winchester principal position

brendanmfoley@outlook.com
WILMINGTON- Wilmington High School assistant principal Dennis Mahoney is one of two finalists for the position of principal at the Winchester High School.

Winchester High School has been without a principal since last summer, when then-principal Sean Kiley left the school under controversial circumstances after only one year in office.

Mahoney, who holds undergraduate and graduate degrees from UMass Amherst and Suffolk

University, is one of only two remaining candidates for the position. The Winchester search committee has been actively working for months at filling the principal position, gradually honing their list down from a wide pool to around ten finalists and finally to Mahoney and Maria McLaughlin.

Most recently, Mahoney and McLaughlin met with parents in the Winchester school district on Tuesday and Wednesday of the past week.

Prior to Wilmington High School, Mahoney spent time as the head of the science department for the Littleton Public School system, where he also worked as a middle and high school teacher.

Citing illness, Mahoney declined to comment to the Crier.

Letters to the editor

Champoux to vote for Bendel

Dear Editor:

To my fellow residents of Wilmington. I want to express my sincere and heartfelt endorsement and support of Greg Bendel for the office of Selectmen in Wilmington.

I have known Greg for ten or so years and am glad to call him a friend. While Greg possesses the qualities that anyone would look for in a friend, what is more important for all of us is that Greg is clearly an ideal candidate for Selectman. He is one of those people that you meet and recognize right away that for him, giving back, volunteering and service to his neighbors is hard-wired into his DNA. Evidence of this is clear in his chosen career as a teacher at the Shawsheen Tech and as a Coach for their basketball team. Someone with the intellectual chops of Greg could have chosen any career he wanted and would have been wildly successful. But Greg made the conscious choice to make a living giving of his skills and gifts for the benefit of his students in his classroom and players on his team.

I will not detail in this letter the myriad accolades and achievements Greg has made professionally and personally. For those, I would direct you to his Facebook page: <https://www.facebook.com/Greg-Bendel-for-Selectman/>.

But, suffice it to say, this is the guy for the job!

As residents of the great town of Wilmington, we have the responsibility to our neighbors today and to our children and future residents to make sure we do what we can to continue to make Wilmington a great place to live, work and raise a family. One way of doing so is to vote for the right people to be your representatives in local Government.

As a lifelong resident of Wilmington, recently married and making his life here in town, together with his talents and zeal to serve, there is no one better suited to the office of Selectman than Greg Bendel.

Please join me on April 23rd in voting for Greg Bendel for Wilmington Selectman

Sincerely, Michael Champoux, Wilmington Board of Selectmen Chairman

The Romano Family to vote for Kevin Cairra

Dear Editor:

We are writing in support of Kevin Cairra, who is running for one of the two open seats in the Selectmen's race in Wilmington. We have known Kevin and his family for many years and feel that he is the perfect person for the position of selectman.

We first met Kevin through our involvement with the Wilmington Band Parents. He invited us to join the Wilmington Sons of Italy and that is when our friendship flourished.

As members of the Band Parents and the Sons of Italy, we have worked closely with Kevin on fundraising events such as our Comedy Night and Town Wide Yard Sale to raise money for both organizations' scholarship programs.

We also are involved with the Sons of Italy Golf Tournament and Easter Bunny Breakfast, of which Kevin is the Chairman. Both of these events raise money for Alzheimer's and Cooley's Anemia.

We can attest to his commitment and his compassion to help others. His leadership ability and organizational skills have led these fundraisers to huge successes. Kevin's volunteer work extends beyond the Band Parents and the Sons of Italy.

For the past four years he has served the Town as Vice Chairman of the Yentile Recreational Development Committee. This major project will support both passive and active recreation for our Town residents.

Kevin has the knowledge on how both state and municipal government works. He worked in State government as an administrator for the State Retirement System for over 20 years and is now the Retirement Administrator for the City of Amesbury.

This year's election is very important for our community. We believe that his experience in government service, both state and municipal, and his many years of volunteer activity exemplify what we need in a Selectman.

We would like to ask the residents of Wilmington to please join us on Saturday, April 23 and cast one of your two votes for Kevin Cairra for Wilmington Selectman.

Sincerely, John and Patricia Romano

A few steps to take while involved in a divorce during tax time

Ellen Wright

Taxes are unavoidable. As Benjamin Franklin candidly put it, "In this world nothing can be said to be certain, except death and taxes." For some, divorce may be just as inevitable, but it can also bring a host of complications to tax filing. The following are a few issues that should be taken under consideration when you are involved in a divorce in or around tax time.

1. Determine your filing status. A person's status at the end of the year determines how they will file their tax return; however, absent an order of the court, there is no obligation to file jointly with a soon to be ex-spouse if you find yourself caught up the middle of a divorce. Married filing separately is almost always an option, but may result in a higher tax liability. If your ex-spouse has concealed income in previous years, it may make sense to file separately if the divorce is contentious and is not likely to settle.

It is also important to be mindful that if there is a liability or refund, there may be duties or obligations associated with how it is divided at the end of the divorce process.

If a divorce is final by December 31 of the tax year, a tax payer will file separately from the former spouse for that tax year. Likewise, the custodial parent of the children may qualify for the favorable head of household status. If not, then single will be the default filing status, even if married for part of the tax year.

2. Consider the tax implications of support child. Support is not deductible to the person who pays it, but alimony is. Likewise, child support isn't reported as income, but the recipient of alimony must claim it his or her tax return. The court however has the power, and parties can agree to designate support as "unallocated" or "family support" so that the tax treatment can be modified to accommodate the need(s) of the parties. This support structure allows spouses to take support payments that are typically not tax deductible and allows the payer to deduct the payments from his or her income taxes.

While alimony has always been treated this way, child support is usually not tax deductible. Unallocated support allows a taxpayer to merge child support and alimony together so that the payment of both becomes a tax deduction to the payer, and taxable income to the recipient.

3. Review your divorce decree to see who will claim the children as exemptions. A properly drafted divorce agreement will contain provisions regarding the right to take the children as tax exemptions. If the agreement is silent then the right to take the exemption will go to the custodial parent. If the custody arrangement is joint, the exemption will go to the party who has the child the greatest number of days during the tax year.

More often than not, a divorcing couple will alternate years or use some other method to equitably share the minor children as tax exemptions, but the terms of the separation agreement will always control.

4. IRS Form 8332 - Don't overlook it. If the non-custodial parent has the right to claim the child(ren) as a tax exemption, the IRS Form 8332 (Release of Claim to Exemption for Child of Divorced or Separated Parents) should be signed by the custodial parent. A copy of this form ought to be filed with the income tax return in order to claim the tax exemptions for children who do not live the non-custodial parent.

As a practical matter, this form is frequently neglected at tax time but care should be taken to make sure it is not disregarded.

5. File first if exemptions are an issue. It is not uncommon for an argument about tax exemptions to surface before tax time even arrives. The custodial parent will always have an edge if they are able to file first since the IRS will make the non-custodial parent prove that he or she was entitled to the take the exemption.

6. Itemize your statement of legal fees paid during your divorce. Although the IRS prohibits any deduction for the cost of personal advice, counseling and legal action in a divorce, fees paid for tax advice about the consequences of your divorce may be taken as an itemized deduction on Schedule A on the line "other expenses."

Likewise, legal fees incurred to obtain alimony support order can be claimed as well. Carefully review the bill from your lawyer to see what, if anything, can be deducted.

7. Consider changing your withholding on Form W-4 or making estimated tax payments. Divorce can affect a tax situation dramatically and have consequences that carry over into future years despite even the best tax advice. If there is going to be a tax liability for the foreseeable future, it may be wise to claim one additional exemption for approximately every $3,600 of deductions, including alimony payments.

In the case of an alimony recipient, consider requesting extra tax withholding in order to cover any new tax liability. If withholding won't be enough to cover make up the difference, set up quarterly estimated tax payments to avoid owing taxes and penalties at the end of the coming year.

Dogs love hearing aids

By LOLEATA WIGALL
Guest Columnist

Just yesterday a woman came in with a chewed hearing aid. She has worn hearing aids for years. She has taken care of them successfully. She wears them every day so she can hear her family and friends. But, over the weekend, she laid one hearing aid on her nightstand instead of on her tall dresser. It was just the right height for her dog to reach it. Her dog smelled her scent on it and began to chew. Crunch was the sound she heard! Yikes! One hearing aid chewed beyond recognition.

Most manufacturers of hearing aids have a loss and damage policy that comes with hearing aids. The policy can range from one year to three years. Loss means the hearing aid or any parts cannot be recovered or found.

Loss means the hearing aid is gone physically. I have reports of hearing aids being flushed down the toilet. I have reports of people losing their hearing aids on the golf course or in the garden. Usually, if the aid is lost, there is a replacement fee. This fee can range depending on the manufacturer and the provider's policy.

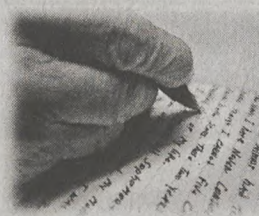

Damage means there are parts that can be sent in for possible repair. If your dog chews your hearing aid, gather as many parts as possible. The case may be crushed but the computer chip may still be useable. Some manufacturers will repair the hearing aid by replacing the case. Sometimes this is less expensive than the loss replacement.

Each case is considered separately and on a case by case basis. You just do not know what components can be used or not used. My advice is to gather all the parts in a zip-lock bag and take them to your provider. The provider can send in the parts to the manufacturer for evaluation.

If your repair and loss and damage policies have expired, you will need to purchase a new hearing aid. Then comes the dilemma: upgrade to newer technology or just replace with the same. If you have two hearing aids, you might consider just replacing the one chewed aid.

If your hearing aids are at least three years old, you might be better off with the newer technology since hearing aids generally last three to five years. Technology improvements happen rapidly. Look at your options to give you the best hearing possible.

Main Street accident sends two to hospital

By LISA KENNEDY-COX
News Correspondent

lisa@yourtowncrier.com
WILMINGTON - An accident on Monday sent two people to the hospital, according to a report by Patrol Officer Michael Cabral.

Victoria Capone, taking direction from an Agganis Driving School instructor, was driving North on Main Street. Capone was waiting to take a left turn into the Z&S gas station, when the instructor told her to go.

Capone, driving an Agganis Driving School vehicle, a 2014 Chevrolet, entered the opposite lane of traffic entering the driveway of the station when Tewksbury resident Jean Dango struck the car Capone was driving on the passenger side.

Dango's airbag deployed upon impact.

Both vehicles suffered severe damage, and were towed from the scene by Cain's Towing. The front passenger occupant of the Agganis vehicle was transported to Winchester Hospital. Dango was transported to Mass General Hospital.

Go Wild at Zumba Party Former Patriots Cheerleader Hosts Local Fundraiser

WILMINGTON - It's a party. It's a show. It's fitness. But most of all it's fun. "No experience necessary," says event organizer and former New England Patriots cheerleader Kelli LaVita. The 9th Annual Zumba Event for Local Children's Charities will be held April 10 at 6:30 pm at the North Intermediate School in Wilmington.

LaVita's Zumba party will feature over 20 instructors from all over New England. This year the theme is "Gone Wild." Wilmington's Steve Greco of 343 Productions is the volunteer DJ. Last year alone the sold-out event raised $2,800.

LaVita has been dancing since age three and instructing since she was eighteen. La Vita's four years as a Patriots cheerleader allowed her to combine her love for dance and her passion for fitness, but there was more to it.

"It also opened my eyes to the many local charitable organizations in the area," she explains.

One hundred percent of the proceeds go to the charities. Tickets are $20 in advance and $25 at the door. There will be raffles, door prizes, and more. This year the organizations receiving donations are Boston Children's Hospital and Birthday

Wishes.

The Birthday Wishes organization provides cakes and presents to homeless children. A birthday party is a luxury that homeless families and the shelters they live in cannot afford. But yet that event is so important to a young child. Having a celebration brings some joy and normalcy into their lives. LaVita and Team Loca Motion support Birthday Wishes all year long.

For more information and to buy tickets, visit www.livinlavitaloca.com or contact Kelli La Vita at 978-479-0324 or kelli@livinlavitaloca.com.

Fruciano to fulfill lifelong dream

Wilmington resident Brianna Fruciano will be fulfilling a lifelong dream. Just recently she was notified that she has been accepted to the Disney College Program and will work at Walt Disney World from June to January.

After graduating from WHS in 2014, Fruciano attended Johnson & Wales University majoring in Sports Entertainment and Events Management. She was named to the Dean's List this past winter and that's when she decided to transfer to JWU's Denver Campus for the spring semester.

It was then in early March, when she received word about getting into the WDW program. She will continue to take classes at WDW and Johnson & Wales' online campus.

Janna Marie Corsetti

Former Wilmington resident

BOW, N.H. - Janna Marie Corsetti, a former Wilmington resident passed away in her home in Bow, N.H. on Sunday, March 6, at the age of 93 of natural causes.

She is survived by her sons, Aaron Corsetti and Daniel Corsetti, and her daughter, Glee Corsetti-Hooper.

Janna will be remembered as a fiercely independent woman who was always happy to see her family and regale them with stories of her time growing up and her life as a nurse.

She was always kind to everyone even in the face of adversity and conflict, as well as a great lover of animals.

She is affectionately remembered and referred to as "Nana" by her ten grandchildren.

She also leaves many relatives and friends in the Woburn area.

Janna's remains have been cremated at her request.

A private service will be held at a date and location to be determined later. In lieu of flowers, please send donations to the Concord Regional Visiting Nurses Association (http://www.crvna.org/support-us.html) or the Concord SPCA (http://www.pope-memorialsPCA.org/donate).

Patrick J. Devine

Formerly of Wilmington

Patrick J. Devine, age 83, of Wilmington, formerly of Medford, died unexpectedly on March 27, 2016, at the Lahey Clinic Medical Center in Burlington.

Patrick was born in County Tipperary, Ireland, on January 7, 1933. He was the beloved son of the late Patrick and Gretta (Ashe) Devine and was raised and educated in County Kerry, Ireland.

He married the "love of his life" Joan Flynn in 1959. The couple immigrated to the United States in 1960, settling in Cambridge where they resided for a few years. Patrick and Joan moved to Medford in 1967 where they made their home for over 30 years and raised a beautiful family.

Always a hard worker, Patrick worked for Volkswagen before venturing out and starting his own company, Pat's Foreign Auto, which he established in the mid 1960's in Cambridge and then relocated to Somerville. Pat was a great worker and had a vast knowledge of cars. He treated his customers like family and built a great reputation throughout the years.

In 1987, after over two decades of running his own business, he brought his talents to Sentry Auto Group and remained there until 1998. Following his retirement, Pat and Joan moved to Wilmington in 1999. He soon began to work part-time for the town of Wilmington Water Department right up until his passing.

Pat was known to be an avid sports fan and athlete. In his younger years, he enjoyed playing hurling, and, in his later years, it was golf that he enjoyed. As a Boston sports fan, Pat loved to watch and attend countless Patriots, Celtics, and Red Sox games and especially enjoyed attending Bruins games with his son Brian.

Pat will be fondly remembered as a "great guy", hardworking, and very kind. He was a man of great faith and was a communicant of St. Francis Church in Medford where he volunteered many hours at the food pantry.

Pat was a wonderful family man and a great friend whose unconditional love and devotion was evident in everything he did. He will be truly missed by all.

Patrick was the beloved husband of Joan P. (Flynn) Devine, devoted father of Patrick Devine of Medford, Siobhan O'Flaherty and husband Kieran of Wilmington, and Brian Devine and wife Lisa of Medford. Loving "Papa" of Rebecca Devine, Cailin O'Flaherty, Lauryn Devine, Brendan O'Flaherty, and great-granddaughter Gia.

Cherished son of the late Patrick and Gretta (Ashe) Devine, dear brother of Michael Devine and wife Nora of Annascaul, Ireland, Tom Devine and wife Zita of Skerries, Ireland, the late Sheila Donovan and Kitty Devine. Patrick is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Family and friends will gather for a Mass of Christian Burial in St. Dorothy's Church, Main St. (Rte. 38), Wilmington, on Thursday, March 31st at 10:00 a.m.

In lieu of flowers donations in Patrick's memory may be made to Friends of St. Francis Food Pantry, 441 Fellsway West, Medford, MA 02155. Funeral arrangements were under the direction of the Nichols Funeral Home, 187 Middlesex Ave., Wilmington. mmmcken-na11@aol.com.

John E. Hadfield

Wilmington resident, Veteran

John E. Hadfield, age 90, and long-time resident of Wilmington, MA, died Monday, March 28, surrounded by his loving family.

John was born in Bath, England, September 21, 1925. John enlisted in the RAF (Britain's Royal Air Force) as a teenager in support of his country following the Battle of Britain during WWII.

Shortly after the war, John immigrated to the United States where he met and married Shirley Shipley of Vassalboro, Maine, in 1950. He also enlisted in the United States Army and participated in the Korean Conflict; he was trained in radar operations and, subsequently, became a Quality Control Engineer for various companies in Massachusetts such as Microwave Associates and Itek.

John was a Mason for over 50 years and a member of the Shriners organization. He and his wife, Shirley, began the Wilmington Dance Party and became the first presidents. They attended the dance party for many years. They played bridge every month with their Strout Avenue neighbors, the Simmons, Hoopers and Turners and also enjoyed many travel adventures with them.

Upon retirement, John volunteered at the Winchester Hospital and drove a van to transport burn patients from Logan Airport to the Shriners Hospital for Children in Boston. He also volunteered for 10 years at the North Shore Music Theater in Beverly, MA.

John is survived by his loving wife of 66 years, Shirley Hadfield of Wilmington, MA, his four children, Penelope Roche and husband Michael of Orange, MA, Pamela McDade and husband Norman of Andover, MA, James Hadfield and wife Patricia of Glastonbury, CT, and Patricia Campbell and husband Doctor John of Enterprise, AL. John is also survived by 11 grandchildren: Jennifer and Jillian Roche; Melissa (McDade) McMahon; Elizabeth, Rebecca, Jessica, and John Hadfield; Katelin (Campbell) Haver, Kristine (Campbell) Sawyer, Patrick and Matthew Campbell. John also has two great-granddaughters, Audrey McMahon and Anna Haver.

John was always there for his friends and family and will truly be missed by all.

Family & friends will gather for Visiting Hours at the Nichols Funeral Home, 187 Middlesex Ave. (Rte. 62), Wilmington, on Monday, April 4th from 4:00-8:00 p.m. John's Funeral Service will be held on Tuesday, April 5th at 11:00 a.m. in the Wilmington United Methodist Church, 87 Church St., Wilmington. Interment with Military Honors will follow in Wildwood Cemetery, Wilmington.

In lieu of flowers donations in John's memory may be made to the Shriner's Hospitals for Children-Boston, Attn: Development Office, 51 Blossom St., Boston, MA 02114. www.nicholsfuneralhome.com

Eleanor Cameron (Gillis)

Life-long Wilmington resident

Eleanor Cameron (Gillis), age 82, a life-long resident of Wilmington, died peacefully at home surrounded by her loving family on March 24, 2016.

Eleanor was born into a large and loving family on April 26, 1933; she was the daughter of the late Malcolm and Annie (Connors) Gillis and one of several siblings. Eleanor was raised in the "Federal Gardens" section of Wilmington where she was part of a tight-knit neighborhood of many relatives and close friends. Eleanor was educated in Wilmington and a graduate of Wilmington High School with the Class of 1950?

Eleanor married William "Bill" Cameron more than 58 years ago; together they built their own home in Federal Gardens and raised four wonderful children, Kevin, Lisa, Erin, and Kerry. Eleanor was a wonderful homemaker, she had an open door policy for her family and all of their friends. Eleanor was a wonderful baker who shared her many treats with family and friends over the years and was always there to lend hand or an ear over a much needed cup of tea.

Eleanor cherished the time spent with her family especially her grandchildren; she was a wonderful wife, mother, grandmother, daughter, sister, aunt and friend to many. All would agree that she was very loving and kind; always putting others needs ahead of her own. For many years Eleanor worked as an inspector for the Gillette Company in Wilmington; her endearing personality and great work ethic made her quite an asset to the company.

In her spare time, Eleanor loved to travel, take long walks, and try her luck at Mohegan Sun or Foxwoods Casinos.

Eleanor was a very religious woman and an avid communicant of St. Thomas of Villanova Church in Wilmington. Eleanor's faith helped her through many difficult times in life and she not only prayed for her own family and friends but for all who need prayers in their life.

Eleanor will be fondly remembered as quite a "lady", caring, loyal, and always willing to help anyone in need. Eleanor will be greatly missed by all who knew and loved her.

Eleanor was the beloved wife of William C. Cameron, devoted mother of Kevin Cameron and wife Denise of Claremont, NH, Erin Cameron of Andover, Kerry Feyler and husband Dave of Wilmington, and the late Lisa Cameron. Loving "Grandma" of Kasey, Ryan, and wife Stephanie, and Anne Marie Cameron, and Danny and Michael Feyler, and great-granddaughter Taya Cameron. Cherished daughter of the late Malcolm and Annie (Connors) Gillis, dear sister of Edward Gillis and his late wife Kay of Wilmington, Richard Gillis and wife Joyce of Lexington, the late George, James, John, Mary V. "Mimi", and Mary Theresa Gillis. Sister-in-law of Dorothy Gillis of North Reading and Peg Rogers of Peabody. Eleanor is also survived by many special nieces, nephews, and friends.

Family and friends will gather at the Nichols Funeral Home, 187 Middlesex Ave. (Rte. 62), Wilmington, on Tuesday, March 29th at 9:00 a.m. followed by a Mass of Christian Burial in St. Thomas of Villanova Church, 126 Middlesex Ave., Wilmington, at 10:00 a.m. Interment took place in the family lot at Wildwood Cemetery, Wilmington. Visiting Hours were held at the Funeral Home on Monday, March 28th from 4:00-8:00 p.m.

Memorial donations in Eleanor's name may be made to VNA of Middlesex East and Visiting Nurse Hospice, 607 North Ave., Suite 17, Wakefield, MA 01880. www.nicholsfuneralhome.com.

Looking for something new to try?

Boda Borg is a family-friendly, fun gaming experience

Max Herrmann of Groton tries to work through the Jungle challenge.

By PAIGE IMPINK
News Correspondent

paige@yourtowncrier.com

There's a new gaming experience to try and it is fun, family-friendly, and addictive. It's Boda Borg. Just a quick ride away in Malden, this is the first US location of the Swedish live questing sensation.

Geared for groups of three to five players, Boda Borg consists of a series of rooms, each with its own theme and coded challenges. Some "quests" are mental, some are purely physical, and some are a combination.

Players can keep trying to master a challenge as many times as they like until they score the "green triangle" of success. Each failure is met with a red circle above the door and a digital "groan". If successful, players can pass through a door to the next room, but if they fail, they exit the challenge, go back to the hallway, and start again. Challenges must be completed using team work, as no single person can win alone.

Upon entering a room it is not immediately obvious what the challenge will entail. Players must use their senses to figure out what the room is looking for in terms of response. An elaborate network of motion detectors, push buttons, touch sensors, magnetic door closures and video screens keep visitors on their toes with immediate feedback of success or failure. There is some degree of physical skill required at Boda Borg and it is not recommended for ages eight and under.

After our visit, we'd recommend loose fitting clothing, sneakers, and layers so you can keep from getting overheated. It is at once a brain game and a workout in most of the rooms. Knee pads are offered as there is some crawling required to complete several quests, but don't let that deter you. Do a challenge once and if it isn't your cup of tea just move on to another.

Players are given a card to track their progress. An ink stamp is your prize for completing an entire challenge, so you can see that conquering a room is enticing.

Our group even heard that people not only completed rooms, but they timed themselves to try for their team's personal best.

There are currently 16 quests at Boda Borg in Malden with more on the way. We tried several but only completed a few. Themes include Platoon, Farm, Infrared, Jungle, Step Up, Quiz Show, Spider, Tough / Tougher / Toughest and so on.

A room can have any combination of sensors, interactive displays, tunnels, webs, or other "features" that need to be crawled through, touched, dodged, etc. So as not to ruin your fun, I won't give out any other details.

A comfortable café area is nice for those in your party who choose to sit out the action. An all-you-can-eat taco bar is available for ten dollars as no food is allowed inside. However, we brought our lunches and ate in the car.

You can re-enter Boda Borg any time during the day with your wristband. Passes are for two hour blocks, or all day, though you can add time if you decide to stay.

We fully expect to return to Boda Borg with family and friends and hope that you also give it a try. Weekends are busy but week nights are less crowded. This attraction is ideal for corporate team building, scout troop outings, or folks looking for something new and different.

Plan a visit soon and see how well you do! www.boda-borg.com.

The entrance to the "Platoon" challenge. Despite several attempts, our team could not crack the code and progress any further. Props in each room give clues but are not as straightforward as you might think.

A place where dogs can run

By LARZ F. NEILSON

Part of the Wilmington Town Park is going to the dogs. And when construction is complete, the dogs will be going to the park. The town's new dog park will have two fenced enclosures where dogs can run off-leash, with separate areas for small and large dogs.

The dog park will be to the left side of an existing parking area along Main Street in the front part of the park. A large number of trees have been cut, and some grading has been done. Fencing for the park as yet to be installed. Town Manager Jeff Hull said the fencing will cost about $35,000.

The dog park will not encroach on remnants of the historic Middlesex Canal, which runs through the park, said Hull. The canal, the first transportation project built after the founding of the United States, is a registered National Historic Landmark. Begun in 1793, its charter was signed by John Hancock. The canal transported freight and passengers between Boston and the Merrimack River valley and was instrumental in the development of Lowell as an industrial city.

Town Park is on southern Main Street, just beyond the Route 38 railroad bridge. It is the remainder of what was once the town farm, which the town ran for some 90 years as a poorhouse. The farm operated as a business and made money for the town.

The original farm was located on about 85 acres, extending from Eames Street to Maple Meadow Brook. The property was purchased from Susan Eames, widow of Jonathan Eames in 1827 for $1,700. That would be an extremely large sum in that era.

Susan Tufts had married Samuel Morrill on Dec. 24, 1818. He was the grandson of Rev. Isaac Morrill, minister of the Wilmington church from 1740 to 1790. Samuel died a couple of years later.

On April 7, 1822, Susan married Jonathan Eames, son of John Eames, grandson of Caleb.

The family had a farm along Eames Street, with a farmhouse near the present intersection of Eames and Woburn streets.

The couple had a daughter, Susan, born on Feb. 12, 1824, but she died when only two days old.

Jonathan Eames died on July 22 that same year. Susan Tufts Morrill Eames inherited the farm.

The area was largely undeveloped at the time. The Middlesex Canal passed through the property. Main Street did not exist between Eames Street and Butters Row. There were no railroads.

Three years after the death of Jonathan Eames, the town bought the property as a poor farm. Many towns had poor farms at that time. A farmhouse and barn were built and a superintendent was hired.

It is said that the farm paid its own way, or at least earned enough that it was not a burden to the town. One prime source of income was from the hiring out of a team and plow. There were many farm products sold, vegetables, eggs, chicken, hay.

The area which is now a baseball field was a vegetable garden. Other crops were raised in the area opposite on Main Street.

Every year, the selectmen would have dinner at the farm on New Year's Day, to review the operation and books of the farm. The accounts were published in the town report.

The town gradually sold off many pieces of the land between Eames and Main streets. Most of the properties along Main Street in that area were once part of the town farm. The park now has 50.1 acres. The house was located near the gate to the present Town Park, and site of the barn is now the parking lot, adjacent to Main Street.

On April 23, 1919, the barn

caught fire, and the farmhouse burned along with it. The town had no motorized fire engine. A fire engine was summoned from Woburn, but it did not arrive in time to save the buildings. One fireman broke both legs as he fought the fire.

Less than a month later, the town meeting voted to purchase a fire engine for $4,000. There was $2,800 from insurance on the farm, so the fire engine only cost the town $1,200.

At the time, there were only three inmates left at the farm, and they were temporarily housed at the home of Supt. Melvin Brown, nearby. In August 1919, Brown accepted a position as superintendent of the Wakefield town farm. The one woman still at the farm went to the Wakefield farm with the Browns.

About ten years later, the town voted to create the Town Memorial Park. Ceremonies were held dedicating the park to the veterans of the World War. Somehow that memorial has lapsed over the years, and it is now simply referred to as Town Park.

Since then, there have been changes. The Water Department has acquired a part of the park for a well-field. Property on the east side of Main Street, which was not made into the park, has been sold for industrial development.

The park has always been an interesting place, to those who know it.

The old Middlesex Canal wound through the place, making what was called an "ox-bow" as it went around a hill, which itself was anciently a volcano. At the ox-bow, there was an outcropping of ledge with marks from the ropes used for towing the canal boats. That ledge and the rope marks were removed in an earlier town construction project.

There is an aqueduct which carried the canal over Maple Meadow Brook. The brook comes out of a huge meadow of over 100 acres, located off Chestnut Street.

There is a baseball field, now with electric lights. There is a small ski slope and a place for sledding. And in back is an old gravel pit, which possibly is the place that Asa Sheldon used when was working on the construction of the Boston & Lowell Railroad, back in 1833 and 1834. Although he refers to the Town Farm as the place where he got a certain type of gravel, the gravel pit in back doesn't exactly fit the description he gave. Only — there is no other.

The late Frank Tuttle, a mechanical engineer at Avco, wandered over to the Town Park during his lunch hour and became interested in the flowers he found there.

In July and August, 1968, he found and identified 193 species of flowering plants in the back portion of the old Town Farm. In September, he turned his attention to ferns, and found 23 different species.

In a real sense, he had made a discovery. People had been going through the area for generations, but had never seen the flowers and ferns that Frank found.

Then he got together with Arthur Eames Allgrove, a local nurseryman who specialized in native plants. With Allgrove's help, Tuttle acquired and planted 25 different native plants that maybe once were natives of the area.

Reading Cooperative Bank donates to 'Mission of Deeds' program

Reading Cooperative Bank is proud to announce its recent donation to the Mission of Deeds' "Buy-a-Bed" campaign. Donation boxes were set out throughout all RCB branches to help raise funds to support the campaign. The donations raised were matched by the Reading Cooperative Charitable Foundation for a total contribution of $2,538. The donation will help to buy beds for men, women and children of all ages who do not have the opportunity to sleep in a warm bed every night.

"The Mission of Deeds is a great community organization and the Buy a Bed Campaign is an important program that really reaches out to those in need. No one should have to go without the essentials, especially a bed, and this program helps to ensure that basic need is met," said Maureen Bernard, Vice President/Mortgage Loan Officer.

The Mission of Deeds began with the simple dream of one man: to provide basic home essentials to those in need. Since that day in 1993 when Tony Triglione founded the Mission of Deeds, the organization has served thousands of families and individuals throughout Middlesex and Essex counties.

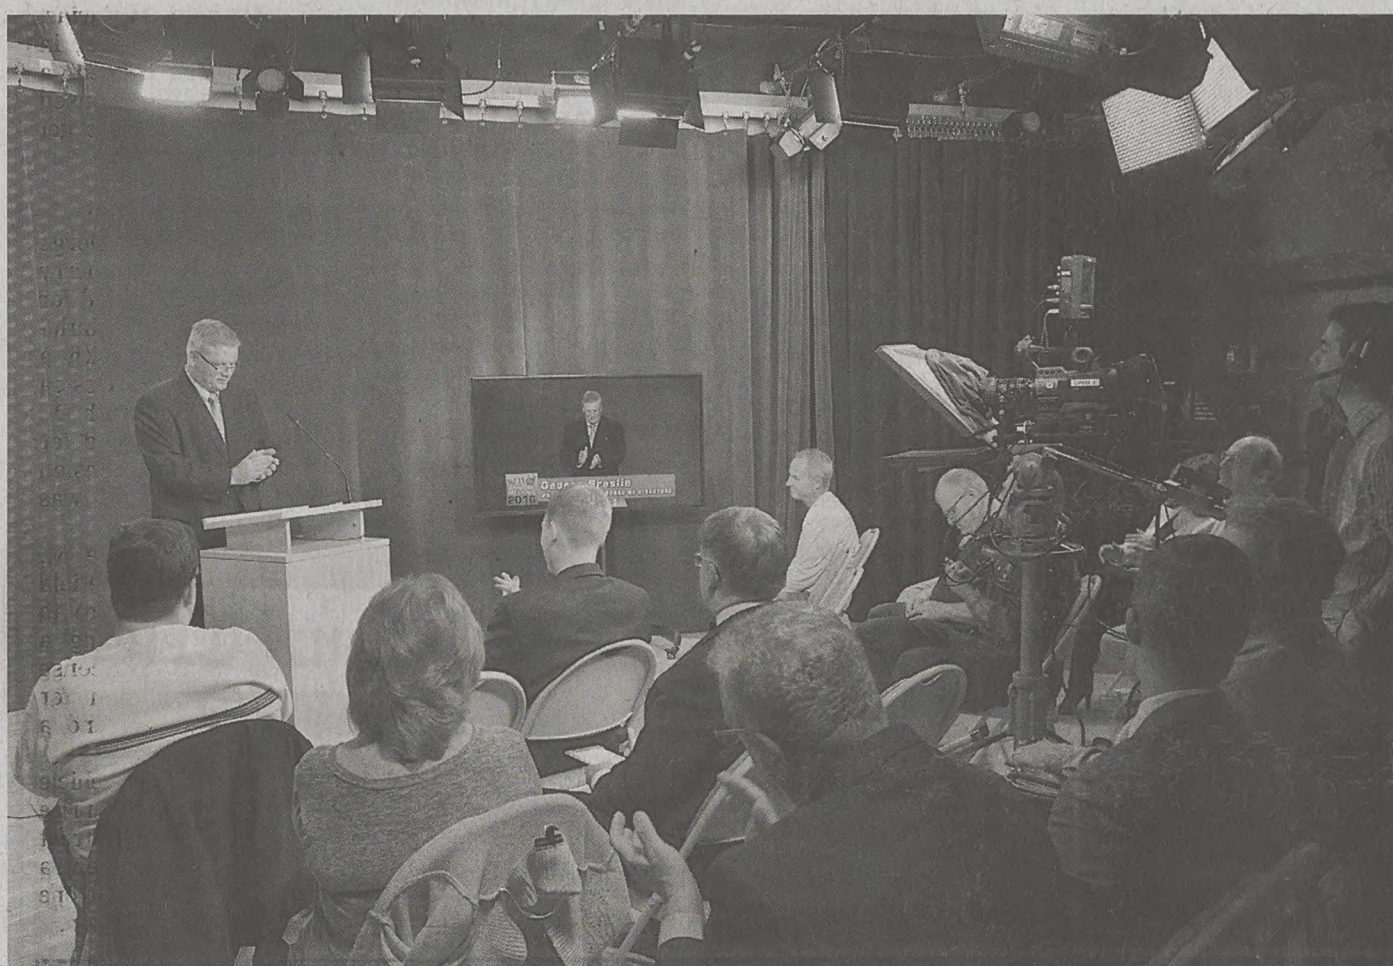

Its many clients include those who have been homeless, are living with disabilities, and the elderly. With Triglione's vision as a guide, the Mission will continue to serve the community for years to come.

Reading Cooperative Bank is a depositor owned co-operative founded in 1886. This community-centric North Shore financial service provider has offices in Reading, Wilmington (2), North Reading, Woburn, Andover, Burlington, Reading Memorial High School and an online branch at www.readingcoop.com. ## Candidate Statement from Greg Bendel

In last week's Town Crier, Greg Bendel, a candidate for the Wilmington Board of Selectmen was featured, however, in the story several facts were incorrect. Below is the corrected version of his biography and his candidate statement.

Bendel, a lifelong Wilmington resident, graduated from Shawsheen Tech High School in 2002. He went on to earn an Associates Degree from the New England Institute of Art, before earning a Bachelor of Arts Degree from the University of Massachusetts-Lowell. He will be graduating this May with his Master's Degree in Education from Salem State University.

Bendel is currently in his eighth year as a full-time teacher at Shawsheen Tech, also serving as the Computer Science Department and is the school's webmaster for the Shawsheen School District. In addition, he is an active member of the Shawsheen Tech School Council and is a member of the Shawsheen Tech School Council.

Besides his career as a teacher, Bendel has spent eleven years as a basketball coach at Shawsheen Tech. He spent the first six seasons as the Freshmen Boys Basketball coach before being promoted to the Head Varsity position in 2011. He was named to the Commonwealth Athletic Conference Coach of the Year in 2015.

During the summer, he organizes several community basketball camps for kids.

In terms of his community involvement, Bendel is a proud member of the Wilmington Knights of Columbus, worked with others on the Wilmington 4.0 Campaign Committee for the new Wilmington High School, has been an active volunteer for the Local Heroes Organization, and for the past five years he has been a member of the Wilmington Housing Authority including being appointed chairman of the board back in 2014.

Greg married Andrea (DiPasquale), who is also a lifelong Wilmington resident, at the St. Thomas Church in Wilmington in July of 2015. Andrea is an office manager for a small business in Wilmington and also serves as the JV Cheerleading Coach at Shawsheen Tech and is very active in Wilmington Pop Warner.

Greg Bendel offered this statement on his candidacy.

"I am very excited about the opportunity to run for the Wilmington Board of Selectmen. I am running for Selectmen because I have a strong history of community involvement and volunteerism that I believe would serve the residents of the town very well. Having grown up in Wilmington, I am familiar with the town's core values and my involvement in the town will help me make informed decisions and work with others to get things done."

"For the past decade I have worked with young people in our community as a teacher and a coach. For the past five years I have worked with seniors and veterans as a member of the Wilmington Housing Authority. Now I am hoping to use these experiences to help all of the residents of Wilmington."

"My wife Andrea and I hope to have the same great opportunities for our family that we were afforded while growing up in Wilmington. I want to help to continue to make Wilmington a great place to live and raise a family. I look forward to working hard and doing my best to earn the vote of residents on Saturday, April 23rd."

What is your instant reaction to hearing the words "public access television"? You may think of meetings or a youth sports event. More than a few of you will picture Wayne and Garth sitting on a couch.

We want you to think of Wilmington Community Television as a media center that showcases video and pictures of Wilmington events, people and organizations.

Executive Director Shaun Neville grew up in Wilmington and spent much of his childhood at the station. After spending more than a decade as a journalist in television newsrooms, he has returned to his roots to lead WCTV into the future.

Neville believes there is a great thirst for local content and only so many outlets able to offer it to the community. Local stories... Local personalities... Local issues. WCTV is in prime position to not only offer that content, but to let members of the community be involved in the process.

Our programs are produced by staff as well as Wilmington residents who want to share their talents and interests with their peers. Membership is free and we offer complete training on state-of-the-art equipment. Volunteers are encouraged to pursue topics they are passionate about and our staff is dedicated to making the process as simple as possible.

While traditional programs run 30 or even 60 minutes, WCTV welcomes shorter video clips as well. We also highlight pictures taken at community events through our Facebook and Twitter accounts. Check them out to see what sort of content we're offering or see our website, wctv.org, for details on how you can get involved.

Executive Director Shaun Neville can be reached at sneville@wctv.org or 978-657-4066. We are always happy to talk to new potential members or make a new connection that could turn into programming down the road.

This member profile is provided by the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce. To have your business highlighted here contact Executive Director Nancy Vallee at 978-657-7211.

Happy National Library Week

National Library Week is April 10-16 and it's a busy week at the Wilmington Memorial Library.

The staff at the library will kick off the Week with the Young Child Art Show, as teens will learn how to draw circuits and kids will read to Zoey the Listening Labrador. There will also be an interview prep, device advice, hand lettering, and a discussion on the gardens of Paris. This might sound like a lot of programs but it's just another week at the WML.

For the staff at the WML, National Library Week signifies a time to look back at how much libraries have changed and try to gauge what kind of impact we have on our community.

Libraries are no longer a space for "just books" but a place to meet new people and learn new skills. Wilmington Memorial Library is not just your grandma's library (although we have plenty for grandma to do!).

DANIELLE WARD,
MARKETING LIBRARIAN

To help spread the word, we are launching the Library Ambassador program. The staff has identified potential "ambassadors" and asked them three questions: "Has the library helped you or someone in your family in the past 12 months? Have you been to a program recently that you really enjoyed? Do you believe that libraries still matter in the 21st century?"

The expected answers to all three questions would be yes but really just wanted them to start thinking more about what WML means to them. Wilmington Library wants to recruit people who would be committed to sharing their personal story about the library with friends and family and promoting the library's value and relevance to the community.

WML's Library Ambassadors plan to start spreading the word beginning National Library Week so you may hear a bit more chatter about the library around town.

If someone at the soccer field talks about a great program she went to or your friend mentions a great service we offer, we hope you lend them your ear.

Even more so, feel free to visit the library or check out our website www.wilmingtonlibrary.org and discover all that the 21st century library offers to you and your family.

Happy National Library Week!

Former Little League President found dead in NC

A 61-year-old Myrtle Beach man – and former Wilmington resident – was found dead last week in the Intracoastal Waterway in North Carolina, according to a release from the New Hanover County Sheriff's Office, according to ABC 15 News in North Carolina.

Francis Dellapelle, 61, was found dead behind Figure Eight Island south of the Figure Eight Bridge on Wednesday, March 23, according to the news release.

His death has been "deemed undetermined" by the medical examiner until toxicology results come back in, the sheriff's office said.

Dellapelle's body was found by local fishermen the morning of March 23 and those fishermen then contacted the U.S. Coast Guard, according to a news release.

Dellapelle was very active in the Wilmington Community, including serving as the Wilmington Little League President.

Cub Scout Pack 56 of Wilmington visited Legoland in Somerville recently. The kids had earned their tickets with their popcorn fundraiser. They had a lot of fun building with legos, raising cars they built with legos, playing in the maze, going through ninjago training camp where they had to jump over and crawl under laser beams and watching a 4d lego movie. The group includes, Cassie Scanlan, Peyton Scanlan, Dylan Tran, Danny Epie, Alex Gray, Spencer Talbot, Zack Tran, BJ, Nino Mannala, Brandon Nevarez and CJ Newkirk. (courtesy photo).

Back to the Farm

Wilmington celebrates Yentile Park groundbreaking

chase and preparation of the site, the business partners and contractors that will support and complete the construction of the project, and members of the Yentile family who attended the ceremony. "Over the next twelve months, this area will be transformed into a community space unlike any other in Wilmington. A variety of activities... from organized sports and pick-up sports, simply just lounging on the park, playing in the playground, or enjoying a picnic in the green space - all of these activities will be available."

While Yentile Farm has enjoyed a special place in Wilmington's collective memory, in recent years the site had fallen into disrepair. It had once been slated for development of a 55-plus community; however, progress on the site stalled, eventually leading to foreclosure on the parcel. In the wake of that failed project, the site—whose only visible improvement had been a concrete foundation—became unsightly and overgrown. The fate of the Yentile Farm parcel remained uncertain until the Town purchased the property in 2012 with the intention of creating an outdoor recreation facility.

Hull praised the development project's vision and its importance for the town. "Creating an attractive space that draws people of all ages outdoors, along the banks of the Maple Meadow brook, will only enhance what it means to live here in Wilmington."

Judith O'Connell, Board of Selectmen member and Chair of the Yentile Farm Committee, was also on hand to celebrate the milestone moment in the development of the space, looking forward to the many other firsts that will succeed this first step in the Farm's new lease on life. "It's going to be a land of all ages and interests. There will be a lot of first memories that will be created here, whether it's a first team victory, a baby's first steps, or that first community event. It's going to be a special place. I think it has a long history yet to be written. I look forward to coming down and enjoying it with my family and friends just like all the other residents of the town."

Many other people were on hand to celebrate the beginning of construction at the site, including State senator

Wilmington Town Selectmen, State Legislative Representatives and the Wilmington Town Manager throwing the symbolic shovel full of Yentile Farm's hallowed soil into the air during the ceremony Tuesday morning. Work has begun on the new Recreational Facility at 9 Cross Street. Bruce Tarr, James Micelli aide David Robertson, Board of Selectmen's Board members Michael Champoux and Michael McCoy, and partners from Textron, Green International, Stantech, and members of the Yentile Farm committee.

Also on hand for the groundbreaking were residents looking forward to the Yentile Farm's rebirth. Long-time Wilmington resident Rachel Savoie attended the event along with her children Vivien, 8, and James, 6.

Rachel expressed excitement at seeing the remnants of the old development cleared away, and to see a new chapter unfold for the location. "I've always been envious of other towns with really nice recreation facilities and places to go with kids. I'm really glad to see the town add something that we're all going to get to enjoy, and to get to watch it going up. It sounds like it's going to be really nice here."

Eight-year-old Vivien and six-year-old James were also excited for a new space to enjoy. "I just want to play on it!" exclaimed Vivien. When asked what his favorite part of the new park might be, James eyed a picture of the playground

On Tuesday morning the kick-off ceremony of the Yentile Farm Recreational Facility took place. The majority of the construction is expected to be completed by November of this year. News of Biscan's quick action spread, even netting her and Will an appearance on the local CBS news. Neither mother nor son especially wants this attention, but Biscan is glad to spread the word to other parents about the importance of this information.

Submitted by Rosemarie Morgan

TARPON SPRINGS, FL -

The 24th annual Wilmington/Tarpon Reunion brought friends from North, South, East and West to the sunshine state. There were 35 happy faces in attendance.

We extend our gratitude to Mike Rosa and Nita Kim for their generosity in donating, cooking and serving us sausages, peppers & onions with all the fixings. The "frosting on the cake" was the delicious desserts.

The permit for our next event, March 11th 2017, has already been purchased.

All you Wilmington folks who are not snowbirds, consider making Florida your "vacation destination" to spend the day with fellow Wilmingtonians for our 25th reunion. You don't need silver hair to join us!

owners through social media.

Discussion then turned to the development of an improved training range for the use of the Wilmington Police Department grew contentious, after a request by two members to conduct further due diligence before voting went unaddressed.

Wilmington Police Chief Michael Begonis opened discussion of the range with a presentation to the Board, outlining his opinion on the necessity of a dedicated facility, and its proposed placement adjacent to the previous firing range on the Abigail's Island site off of Ballardvale Street.

Begonis outlined the training opportunities available to the department currently, which he believed to be less than ideal in terms of offering adequate training, and doing so within departmental budgets.

Currently, Wilmington police departments conducts two yearly trainings—a day shoot hosted by the Harvard Sportsmen's Club, and a night training hosted at the Andover Sportsmen's Club.

While the trainings provide the minimum mandated continuing education and training, the logistics of setting up and traveling to shoots reduces the potential for regular, dedicated intervals of training.

Begonis also contends that having a dedicated site for the use of WPD officers would vastly improve the readiness of officers who could be called to respond to critical situations in the course of service.

"We felt that one of our main goals was to re-establish a training facility here in town with the objective of enhancing the more specific skills that we are required to have in today's day and age."

While they currently conduct the minimum training, Begonis would like to see a 24-hour yearly training schedule, with more frequent training intervals for officers.

Chief Begonis also pointed out the cost savings in maintaining a site for dedicated training use.

"We can double the amount of training time we have for the same amount of personnel cost," he said.

Though the board members acknowledged the need for highly skilled police force, several members felt the need for further due diligence efforts before committing to the cost and efforts involved in creating an environmentally compliant, dedicated training facility at the site.

Board member Michael Newhouse expressed concern that, given the expense of modifying and improving the Abigail site, there might be better ways to utilize the funds required, that would have a similar impact on the welfare of the town. He suggested the alternative of exploring a regional range that could use State or federal resources for construction.

"I think it's fair to point out that those are funds that we as a town need to figure out how to use most productively... what are we passing up in terms of preventative expenditures that can reduce that prospect of some of these incidents."

Board member Judy O'Connell echoed her colleague's desire for more exploration, citing the need to ensure than the site would provide opportunities for advanced police training, without sacrificing the needs of the town in terms of environmental and noise impact.

"I want to make sure this is a comprehensive proposal and to feel that, endorsing it or not endorsing it, we've asked all the pertinent questions," she said.

While expressing faith in the department to properly manage and administer the project, she cited the need to examine "the level of security, liability, cost, and infrastructure, and what this means for the Town of Wilmington."

Michael McCoy, one of the more enthusiastic supporters of the range, expressed his personal satisfaction with the Abigail's Island site. He assured residents of the safety of the site, having personally toured the proposed property. He stated there were no residences within line of sight of the range area.

On a personal note, even as a resident quite local to the parcel, he was never aware of any firearms activities happening on the property. Despite calls to table the discussion in favor of further investigation, McCoy called a motion to vote on the approval of the proposal contingent upon favorable documentation to be provided by Town Manager Jeffrey Hull. Board member Louis Cimaglia seconded the motion.

A short but pointed discussion took place between O'Connell and McCoy about his desire to carry out a vote that overshadowed his colleagues' request for further review. Michael Newhouse pointed out the board's history of prudence in pursuing votes, citing many examples of holding off on such simple decisions as victualer and pouring licenses in the spirit of informed consent.

"I would respectfully request one more meeting to get those [documents] and anticipate a vote and come to a decision at the next meeting," he said.

Michael Champoux attempted to cool the discussion by expressing his desire to bring the board to a unanimous vote all questions answered to board members' satisfaction. Though he believed the motion could pass, he stated, "I don't want to win."

In the end, Champoux cited the need observe meeting rules which required a vote on an item after a motion and a second. The motion failed in a 2-3 vote. Champoux then made the formal request of Town manager Hull to collect the aforementioned documentation, in anticipation of a new vote at the next meeting April 11th.

The night moved on from the failed vote to cover items of communications, and approve several items on the agenda, including the 6th season of the Farmer's Market, an "End of Summer Reading Bash" to be hosted on Swain Green, several license approvals and renewals, and the ratification of new Wilmington Historical Commission member Joseph E. Muse.

The board will next meet April 11th, at Town Hall, Building 9 on Glen Road at 7pm.

Walter MacDougall exposes himself to young girl at Market Basket

Local resident arrested for lewd conduct

At approximately 6:37 pm, the Wilmington police department was contacted for what was described as a "lewd act" at the Wilmington Market Basket.

Officer Louis Martinetti was dispatched. Sergeant David McCue, Detective Pat Nally and Martinetti met at the Wilmington Plaza to speak with the reporting party's family.

At first, police spoke with the mother of the girl, who was upset at the exposure that her child suffered in the grocery store. The girl's mother described the details provided by her daughter and added a description of the location in the store where the incident occurred, the back end of the store in the second aisle.

The mother contacted the manager of the store on duty that night following the incident.

The police spoke with the eight-year-old victim, who was described as "very articulate and able to give a descriptive recount of the incident." According to the girl, a "strange man kept staring at me and my brother" while shopping with her mother. The girl added, "It was really weird, he kept staring" and she made a face of somebody sticking out her head, describing how MacDougall was staring, "like this."

"He kept going around us... around and around," the girl continued, "Then as we left the deli area, he pulled up his shirt and it (MacDougall's penis) was sticking out."

Nally then asked the mother of the girl if she could "gently" ask her to describe if MacDougall's penis was "erect." The girl described MacDougall's penis, which, from the description, appeared to be in an erect state.

The girl's brother was with her the whole time (they were actively playing in the deli area and starting to go up the second aisle), but it was reported that the boy did not see the exposure.

Nally, Martinetti and McCue went into the Market Basket and met with Manager Kristen Oldak-Coelho. Coelho stated, "You can't see [MacDougall] actually exposing himself and we have lots of video, and not only that, he used his credit card receipt."

Coelho explained that after being near the children, MacDougall "booked it" towards the checkout counter and purchased a bag of Dunkin' Donuts coffee grounds with a credit card. The name printed out on the slip was that of Walter MacDougall and was signed with the name Walter MacDougall.

The credit card slip was submitted for evidence. The officers and Coelho then watched the surveillance video, which showed MacDougall and the children in the store. The two children were actively playing in the deli area. The video showed MacDougall following over to where the children were.

It was reported that the children were "right in front of the pickle display," and that the video showed MacDougall directly in front of the girl. It was also reported that her eyes could be seen looking in the direction of the mid-section of MacDougall's body. At the time, the mother was getting groceries from the aisle with her eyes directed away from the children.

Video then showed the girl looking at MacDougall and moving away, and he went quickly up the aisle to the checkout counter. As MacDougall stood in the "12 items or less" aisle, he can be observed looking over his shoulder several times. He then made a purchase and left the store.

Once back at the station, officers were able to confirm without doubt that the person seen in the surveillance video at Market Basket and seen around the children, was the same person in the RMV photograph.

MacDougall is a long-time resident of 36 Salem Street in Wilmington, MA. The police department had been aware that there was a recent incident in Reading, MA of a possible exposure with no charges.

The police department is also aware of MacDougall's prior incidents in 2003 (Open and Gross Lewdness), and two other incidents in 1986 for Lewd and Lascivious and Open and Gross conduct charges in 1969.

The Wilmington Police Department seeks criminal charges of Open and Gross Lewdness as MacDougall intentionally lifted his shirt to expose his penis that he had taken out of his pants by unzipping his jeans, exposing his genitals [penis] as well as the incident taking place in a busy grocery store and displaying his penis in front of a child in a way to produce "alarm and shock" as the eight-year-old's reaction clearly reflected fear and shock. Although the child did a "tremendous job explaining the incident, she was clearly disturbed by the action."

On Wednesday, March 23, 2016 at approximately 11:00 pm, detective Nally and Sergeant McCue arrived at Walter MacDougall's residence at 36 Salem Street. Nally placed handcuffs on MacDougall and transported him to the police station to be booked by Sgt. McCue. The report shows that MacDougall was read his rights and fingerprinted.

In addition to charges for the above incident, MacDougall will be charged with a subsequent offense of Open and Gross Lewdness based on a guilty finding from a 2003 case.

MacDougall was arraigned and is now free on $7,000.00 cash bail. He will be back in court next month.

Volleyball Coach Meghan Sheehy the latest to resign

Wilmington High Coaching Staff gets spiked again

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

jamiepote@hotmail.com
WILMINGTON - Just a few weeks after Wilmington High School Boys Basketball coach Joe Maiella resigned, and a week after assistant football coach Billy Manchester resigned to take a job elsewhere, the soon-to-be retired Athletic Director Ed Harrison received another resignation on his desk this past week as WHS Volleyball Coach Meghan Sheehy gave her notice effective immediately.

Sheehy took over the volleyball program before the 2010 season and held the spot for six years. She already has a bachelor's degree and a master's degree and is currently enrolled into achieving her second master's degree and she said that time became an ultimate factor in her decision.

"I'm taking classes right now and I'm weighing all of my options," she said. "Everything requires more time and I'm trying to further my career. I just don't know what I want to do yet, whether it's become an administrator of some sort, a department head - I'm not sure right now. I need time to figure this out and because of that I wouldn't be able to give my full attention to the program. I didn't think that would be fair for anyone especially the girls."

Sheehy took over before the 2010 season when then head coach Mark Staffier had resigned to spend more time with his family. Staffier held the position for nine years and had great success in terms of wins and losses at the start, winning 12-13-11-14 games during a four-year span which included losing in the Division 3 North sectional semi-finals to North Reading back in 2004.

After that '04 season, the next five seasons, the Wildcats combined for a record of 27-70 under Staffier.

Sheehy came on as a young 23-year-old, just a year-plus out of college. She grew up in Long Island, New York playing four years of softball and volleyball and was a captain for both teams while at St. Anthony's High School.

She went on to earn a Bachelor's Degree in Math at Stonehill College where she played four years of softball and was also a captain.

Then in the fall of 2009 she took a teaching position in the math department at WHS and held that spot until she left to take a spot at Burlington High School last year.

In her six seasons as volleyball coach, Sheehy finished with a record of 37-83, which included a 5-15 mark this year. Her teams finished 4-16, 9-11, 8-12, 7-13, 4-16 and 5-15 under her guidance. The team never qualified for the tournament under Sheehy, and in fact hasn't qualified since that '04 season, going a combined 64-153 in the last 11 seasons.

"I know our record doesn't amount to much, especially moving from the Cape Ann League to the Middlesex League, but if you watched our teams, you could see how much they improved from the start of the season to the end. I know the records don't back that up, but the skill level was substantially better."

When Sheehy came on, the program had just two teams, varsity and JV. The numbers were very low and she was getting a lot of athletes who were cut from other fall athletic programs, and not true volleyball players. But over the six years, all of that has changed.

"We barely could field two teams when I first started," she said. "Now we have three teams with a freshmen team and now we're making cuts (to the three programs). I think that says a lot of how far this program has come. We would get girls cut from other programs, and now we're getting girls who play in the off-season during the summer, girls who have year-round interest in the sport, who do clinics and who spend extra time in the sport. We didn't have that before."

"I owe so much of that to Eddie (Harrison) and Kevin (Welch, Harrison's assistant). They were both such big fighters to get the freshmen team. Without the two of them, none of that would have happened."

During her six years, Sheehy coached a lot of "great girls who worked so hard and left everything out on the floor", including Lauren Bennett. She left the WHS program after graduating and walked-on to play at Division 1 UMass-Lowell. This past year she blossomed and had a tremendous season which earned her many honors, including the Town Crier's Female Athlete of the Year.

"Lauren's accomplishments are so amazing and so well deserved," said Sheehy. "She is playing at such an elite collegiate level and she didn't come from the best high school program. But I think she grew to understand the sport more, she worked at it and she deserves everything she gets."

Bennett as well as probably another 90-100 girls will certainly miss Sheehy, who was an incredible spark of energy, passion and provided toughness and competitiveness to a sport that has struggled though five decades. The program has just one league championship title (1997 under then head coach Mike Nee) - and only about a dozen winning seasons in its long history.

"I had a lot of fun," Sheehy said. "The support of the parents and the kids, I'll miss the most. I really had a fantastic (collective) group. Those girls worked their butts off for me. I don't think their work ethic reflected on the record, but they tried so hard, but they also had some fun. The whole aspect is tough to let go to be honest."

She added that besides Harrison and Welch, she wanted to thank WHS Principal Linda Peters for her strong support as well as her two assistant coaches, Kylie Sundberg (3 years) and current assistant Colleen Magee (3 years).

Sheehy added that Magree would be the perfect choice for either Harrison or the new incoming AD Tim Alberts to select as the next coach.

"One hundred percent I will recommend her for the position," said Sheehy. "There's so much to learn in this sport and she relates to the kids. She is just such a great example for the kids. One hundred percent, I think she would be great so if she wants it, I think she could very well do a great job."

Alberts named AD, pending contract by April 1

During last Wednesday's School Committee Meeting, Wilmington Superintendent of Schools Mary DeLai announced that Tim Alberts is her nomination to become the school's next athletic director, pending an agreement on a contract.

"We will begin contract negotiations for that position in hopes of having him signed on by April 1 with a July 1 start date," she said.

If and when the contract is signed, Alberts will relieve Ed Harrison, who is retiring on July 1st. Harrison was present during the meeting.

"This is bittersweet for us," said SC Chairwoman Peggy Kane.

Alberts is the current Matignon High School Athletic Director and he beat out over 40 candidates for the position. Back on March 17, he along with Ryan Quigley, the former AD at Ashland High School were the two finalists and they both met with the students, coaches and parents as part of the interview process.

The Town Crier will have much more on the hiring of Alberts if and when the contract gets signed.

ML ALL-STARS

This past Wednesday at the School Committee Meeting, Wilmington High School Athletic Director Ed Harrison presented a summary of the winter athletic season including recaps of each team's season, as well as listing the all-stars from each program.

They are as follows: Girls

Basketball - Caroline Andersen; Boys Hockey - Brian Cavanaugh; Girls Hockey - Olivia Wingate; Girls Track - Alyssa Bernazani, Victoria Sheehan, Sam Pitzi, Alexcia Luna, Elisabeth Olson and Julia Gake; Boys Track - Evan Sperlinga, Deven Langenfeld and Kyle Nelson.

In addition, Girls Track Coach Brian Schell was named the Boston Globe's Division 3 Coach of the Year. Also Wrestlers Fox Maxwell was the Division 3 North sectional champion, while Sam Jennings and James Carroll both placed fourth at the sectionals.

Pee Wee 3's and Squirt 1's remain busy in the ice rinks

The Wilmington Youth Hockey Pee Wee 3's saw their season come to a heartbreaking end on Monday night at the Haverhill Valley Forum, as the Wildcats suffered a 2-1 shootout loss to the Groton Crusaders in the first round of the Pee Wee East National A playoffs.

This was a thriller of a game from start to finish, with both teams having several scoring chances turned away by some outstanding goaltending as they battled through three hard fought periods as well as a five minute overtime before finally setting it in a shootout where the Crusaders outscored the Wildcats by a 3-2 margin.

Wilmington got on the board first, with Shane Roberts getting credit for the goal, which bounced off a Groton defender past stunned Crusader goalie Alexander Hillenberg just 3:09 into the game. Unfortunately for the Wildcats, that was the last time they would beat Hillenberg until the shootout.

Groton tied the game with exactly 7:00 left in the first on a goal by Leo Boisvert and the score would remain deadlocked at 1-1 heading into the second period. Groton had a big chance to take the lead late in the final minute of the period, but a great pad save by Wildcats goalie Thomas Dalton kept things at a stalemate.

Wilmington controlled play for much of the second period with the line of Roberts, Anthony Angiuoni and Chris Patterson being especially effective. Patterson was denied on a brilliant glove save by Hillenberg with 6:41 left in the frame, and moments later Angiuoni was also turned away on a great save.

With the score tied at 1-1 heading into the third period, one might have expected a conservative third period, but it was anything but that, as the two teams engaged in a back and forth track meet that saw both squads with great opportunities to take the lead.

The Roberts, Angiuoni and Patterson line continued to lead the offensive charge for the Wildcats, and they were joined on their offensive attack by the line of Ben McEwen, Colby Medeiros and David Olson, along with the trio of Tyler Sheehan, Jordan Legere and Adam Ippolito.

Each line had some big opportunities to give the Wildcats the lead, the best of which came on a great shot by Olson with just under seven minutes left in the game that was once again denied by a great glove save. Legere also had a fine rush up ice with about two minutes left in regulation which came up short.

Meanwhile on the other end of the ice, Dalton was outstanding, stopping several great Groton bids with big saves the best of which came with 3:30 left when he flashed his right pad and made a brilliant stop to keep the score at 1-1.

If Dalton did leave a rebound in front, his defensive corps of Will Kenyon, Shane Costello, Shane Papineau, Aadarsh Sivakumar, Cam Tucker and Sean O'Donoghue made big plays to clear the puck out and end any Crusader threats.

Regulation ended with the score still deadlocked, as did the five minute overtime despite some great chances by O'Donoghue and Olson in closing minutes of the extra session, and the teams moved on to the do or die, five round shootout.

After Dalton denied Groton in the first round of the shootout, Olson got the Wildcats off to a 1-0 lead with a goal. Groton, however, scored the next two goals to take a 2-1 lead before Patterson scored on a tremendous shot from the slot to tie it 2-2 after three rounds.

Groton scored in the fourth round while the Wildcats were denied to make the score 3-2, meaning a goal by Groton in the top of the fifth round would have ended the game. But Dalton came up with a huge save to give his team a chance in the bottom of the fifth. The Wildcats shooter was denied, however, and Groton celebrated the big win while the Wildcats could only look back on what had been a fine season.

The Wildcats player and coaches would like to thank head coach Tom Dalton, along with assistant coaches Guy Angiuoni and Chris Patterson for all of their time and effort this season.

Squirt 1's

Two outstanding efforts from the Wilmington Youth Hockey Squirt 1's led to a tie and a solid victory this past weekend for the Wildcats, as they battled to a 4-4 tie with Greater Lowell on Friday night before soundly defeating Nashoba 6-0 on Saturday.

The Saturday morning win was especially rewarding for the Cats who were defeated twice earlier in the season by Nashoba. This time around, in the last game of the regular season, the Wildcats came out flying, getting on the board early in the first at 10:09 when Matthew DiZoglio scored on a wrap around attempt, jamming in the loose puck.

Nashoba tried to come back, but the Wildcat defense of Bruce Green Audette, James Caples, Jacob Smith, Casey Robbins and Ella Cedrone had no intentions of letting them in the game. With 3:26 left in the first a solid shift from Ryan Hayden, Jake Ciulla and Daniel Lagunilla led to a nice goal from Ciulla on a tough angle shot down low.

Just 43 seconds later Brian Barry extended the Wildcat lead to 3-0 on a nice power play goal assisted by Jake McLean. Shortly, on the same shift Nick Ackerman buried a sweet shot to give the Cats a 4-0 lead with little time left in the first.

Great team work, excellent fore checking and back checking were evident throughout the game from the Wildcats. Nashoba fought back hard in the second period only to be denied by Wilmington goalie Griffin Carr who played an outstanding game between the pipes. Carr turned away several shots on some odd man rushes and the Cats defense stepped up big time to clear out traffic and rebounds from in front of the net.

All the while the Wildcats were getting even more solid play up front from forward Charlie Chirichiello which resulted in a late second period goal from Bobby Dodge on a rebound shot from DiZoglio which gave Wilmington a 5-0 lead at the end of two.

Just 1:45 into the third period DiZoglio would bang in his second of the game on a great shot beating the frustrated Nashoba goaltender again.

Defensively and offensively the Wildcats carried the play throughout the game and when the opposition had a scoring chances Carr stood tall, allowing no goals to earn the shutout.

Chicks with Sticks game coming up on April 10

Wilmington Youth Hockey Association is hosting the Third Annual Chicks with Sticks Charity game on Sunday April 10, 2016. The teams will face off at 3:00 at the Stoneham Arena to shoot for a common goal. Mother against mother, the event will raise funds to fight breast cancer and support the mission Wilmington Youth hockey.

Last year the event packed the stands, raising over $28,000 for our causes. Thirty-five percent of the proceeds were donated to local breast cancer charities. In addition, new jerseys and socks were purchased for all Wilmington Youth Hockey players while keeping our registration fees the same.

Please support our initiatives and make a donation today! The organization eagerly accepts and whole heartedly appreciate cash donations, as well as, items/memorabilia that can be raffled off at our game. Cash donations can be easily processed at https://www.razoo.com/story/3rd-Annual-Chicks-with-Sticks-Charity-Hockey-Game-1?referral\_code=share. All donors will be showcased in our game day program. All donations must be submitted by 3/31/16.

Two Tewksbury legends talk about life in Florida

at Tewksbury High School. Aylward compiled a 120-56-6 record with six Merrimack Valley Conference Championships and two Super Bowl titles in four appearances.

"I always felt so grateful that the Tewksbury system hired me back in 1974," Aylward remembers. "I saw first-hand on film and in the games the toughness and athletic ability of the Tewksbury kids. When the job opened up, I didn't hesitate to go for it, and I was lucky enough to get it."

Aylward quickly had the team winning in those first years on the job, going to the Super Bowl twice and bringing a championship home to Tewksbury. He left town from 1990-94 to coach at Nashua High School, where he was 35-19 with four Division 2 playoff appearances. He returned to Tewksbury in 1995 to lead the Redmen to two more Super Bowls and another championship. Bob also served as athletic director and assistant principal at the high school. Aylward, who will soon turn 70, decided that it was time to retire back in 2007. He left a legacy that includes an induction into the Massachusetts High School Football Association Hall of Fame in 2001.

His friend McCabe reminds him not so subtly that it was often the younger man who was supplying the veteran with some sage coaching advice. "He turned the football program around. If it wasn't for Bobby Aylward, in my opinion -- and I don't cut corners -- he turned that program around and made them champions," offers McCabe. "When I was coaching, I took a quote from Bobby Aylward and I'm usually the one with the big mouth. 'Tewksbury-Home of the Champions.' You instill that in the kids from day one in practice. Bobby believes it and I believe it. Any time that Tewksbury loses a game, I believe that it's an upset, I don't care who we are playing."

Aylward and McCabe often have turned to each other for advice over the years. They quickly became friends when Aylward arrived in Tewksbury, and it's obvious that McCabe appreciated the fact that his friend always had his back, especially when some of McCabe's coaching methods were questioned by someone who didn't quite get just where the veteran hockey coach was coming from.

"I would take a player off the bench between periods and explain why he had made a mistake," he said. "That player would come back in the next period and play a magnificent game. It was like a magic wand had come over his head. I don't know if you could do that with a kid nowadays. But you could always do that with a Tewksbury kid. Every kid that I see today -- and I don't want to start crying now -- they will say, coach McCabe, you were the best. Players who played for me, I love them to death and I will go to my grave trying to help them out if they ever have a problem in life -- and I know that Bobby is the same way."

McCabe was different in that when it came time to cut players from the team before the start of every season, he would never post names on a bulletin board -- a system that for years was commonplace in most high school varsity sports. He would always talk to each player individually, explaining why he did not have what it takes to make the varsity team. For many players, it would mark the end of their high school hockey careers. For the players who made the grade, they were blessed to have a coach who cared enough about them to see that there was life after hockey. "One hundred percent of the players that played for me were offered a college education somewhere," says McCabe, with understandable pride.

McCabe's coaching system

was unconventional to some, and Aylward, who by this time was the high school's director of athletics, would go to bat for the hockey coach with parents or members of the school's administration. "He is younger than me, but he taught me some lessons," said McCabe with more than just a little humility.

While Aylward had to become a better politician at times when he moved to the administrative side of the school system, he always had coaching running deep in his emotional blood. He knew that no matter what job he held, if he led properly, the Tewksbury kids would soon follow.

"The Tewksbury kid has always been extremely coachable, with very little parental interference," said Aylward. "The trust of the community has been great. There really is a special pride there. Our kids in Tewksbury are absolutely the best. They are hard-working, they ask for nothing, and they give you everything that they have."

PLAYERS WOULD LISTEN AND LEARN

Aylward went on to talk about his first team at Tewksbury in 1974, led by co-captains Mike King and Steve Flagg. I played with both King and Flagg on a team that won just two games in 1972. I can remember players on that team asking me just what this new coach was all about. They were concerned that Aylward was asking them to do too much, too soon. They were questioning whether they were up to the task and whether the new guy was even ready to get them to where they wanted to go. I told them at the time to essentially be quiet and pay attention. Aylward remembers with some emotion those first Friday night meetings at the high school with that group of players.

"I told my coaches at the time that you have got to treat every kid like he's royalty. It's as simple as that. There are no excuses. That's the way that we are going to do things moving forward. These kids don't know how good they are or how bad they are. I wanted a fresh start with these kids. It was a no-nonsense approach. I promised the kids that we would be more prepared than any team we played, guaranteed. The coaching staff would stay up until two or three in the morning if that's what it took. I told them they would have all the information that they could possibly need."

That first Aylward team began the 1974 season 5-0 before finishing 5-4-1. Scott Darby would take the season's opening kickoff to the house for a touchdown. It was a rollicking start for a group of players so accustomed to heartbreaking defeat. Aylward remembers tight end/linebacker Richard Sullivan asking him if the team was capable of winning five games. "Why can't we win ten games, Richard?" Aylward asked Sullivan. "Why can't we? Why not?"

It's obvious that Aylward has a soft spot for that first Tewksbury team in 1974. He mentions his first great running back Rick Mackey and his first quarterback Tom Sullivan. Jim Panzino was a player who was looking for leadership, and when he found it, his attitude and self-confidence took flight. I remember it well. The conversation turned to what Aylward had done for a downtrodden kid with a stutter. It could have been Panzino. It could have been me. In reality, it was the both of us. We both have Aylward to thank for this emotionally charged jumpstart.

When Panzino heard that I was working on some background for this story, he sent me a Facebook message. "A little-known story was that I had to get a waiver to play high school sports because of a congenital heart defect. It didn't stop me. I had to get a mechanical valve in 2005. I give coach Aylward all the credit for that strength. Then in 2009, I broke the T10 vertebrae in my back. Again, coach Aylward's teaching helped me to fight through this. I believe in Tewksbury Tough."

By 1976, the Redmen were competing for a berth in the first Schoolboy Super Bowl. Tewksbury and Andover were both 5-0 that season, with a big game set for Tewksbury's rundown dirt field/mud bowl at the Center School. Tewksbury Superintendent of Schools John Wynn suggested that the Redmen football team should play the game at Andover's field. Aylward just might have been channeling some McCabe at that moment in 1976. He would have none of this idea. He somehow pulled his emotions together and let Wynn know exactly how he felt about the situation.

"I said to him, if it's OK for our kids to play on that field, why isn't it OK for the Andover kids? Think about what you are saying to me. Mr. Wynn, if the team plays this game in Andover, they will do it without their head coach. Then I walked out of the room. I thought that I had made a very strong point, and we played the game at home. We cancelled the game because of the weather and we played on a beautiful Sunday afternoon."

Tewksbury won that day 7-0 when Jay Petros scored the game's lone touchdown. That team was led by the play of youngsters with typical Tewksbury heart. They included nose tackle 'Fuzzy' Petros, linebacker Rick McGillick, defensive end Billy Ashe and Brian Wolfe of television's 'Cry Wolfe' at quarterback.

Like Aylward, McCabe got his teams believing that they should be 'the best of the best'. He challenged them to shake up the high school hockey world and actually defeat a Division One Catholic School. McCabe says that his greatest high school victory was a 4-2 win over Matignon.

"My dream was always to take a little Division Two team and win the Division One Tournament. That was my dream in coaching and in life, to knock off the best high school hockey team in the country."

REASONABLE EXPECTATIONS

Both McCabe and Aylward are content in the fact that they have left the next generation of Tewksbury High School student/athletes in more-than-capable hands. Derek Doherty took over behind the TMHS hockey bench in 2001 and Brian Aylward has been the varsity football coach since 1997. The many banners hanging in the sparkling new TMHS gymnasium attest to the fact that the school remains championship-driven in all the right ways. Included in those ways is the annual College Recruitment Night, where many Division 1 and 2 colleges along with some prep schools come to the Tewksbury Country Club to provide valuable information for local high school football players. This leads to our conversation about reasonable expectations for graduating Tewksbury High School athletes.

Aylward has spent some of his time here in South Florida checking out the various football clinics for information that might help his son Brian with the Redmen football players today. This all goes into the idea that even in retirement, the senior Aylward is interested in checking out just what might be going on in the 'new and improved' coaching circles outside of Massachusetts.

"You have to remember that you are responsible for kids from when they are 14-years-old to almost 19. Sometimes that can be an overwhelming responsibility. The Tewksbury kids would always kill themselves to be the best that they could be. You would only assume that at the next level that they would do the same thing," says Aylward. "I was always one hundred percent honest with any kid that played for me," says McCabe. "I would tell them that no, you won't be going to that particular college because you don't have that kind of ability."

While most TMHS athletes might not always be headed to Notre Dame, most are assured of a fine college education if they do the right thing by listening to coaches the caliber of Derek Doherty and Brian Aylward. Both coaches have learned from the best-of-the-best in McCabe and the senior Aylward.

The change in the town and the type of athlete playing sports at the high school hasn't really shifted the level of focus that is required, according to McCabe and Aylward.

"The change has been gradual and consistent. It has gone from being essentially a farming community (in the 1930's) to more people coming from the city. We still get the hard-nosed kids that aren't babied. They have parents that expect them to do it on their own and to do the best that they can. We are blessed to have a kid the quality of Derek Doherty to succeed Coach McCabe and Brian Aylward -- call it nepotism or whatever you want -- he's legitimate. He's paid his dues all the way through. He has never got anything for nothing. Now he is seeing the fruits of his labor, absolutely," offers Aylward.

ENJOYING LIFE IN FLORIDA

"In my lifetime I have always been grateful that I'm alive and that I had a job," admits Aylward as we watch people saunter past us coming back from a day at the beach. "It's simple, but important. That's the way that I always felt as a football coach, and that's the way that I feel today. I ask my kids for permission to come here every year. It's a guilty pleasure. I'm grateful. I always was, and I still am."

McCabe vacationed for 40 winters in Pompano Beach, and for many years he loved going to college football bowl games, even attending the last Super Bowl played here in South Florida six years ago when the New Orleans Saints upset the Indianapolis Colts.

"My nephew got us tickets to that game, and the prices for that game were off-the-charts. I know that he paid thousands of dollars for those tickets," remembers McCabe. "I've seen arguably the best college football teams in the country at one time or another."

McCabe would start as far north as Atlanta and work his way through Florida, catching the best bowl games that college football had to offer. He has just one regret in that he missed a certain great Wyoming Cowboy linebacker play in the biggest games of his college football playing career. "I didn't get to see those Wyoming games that Bobby played in, but I would have given my right arm to have seen one of those games. I couldn't see all those games today because those prices have gone off the charts so that the average fan like me can't go to those games. I remember that Charlie Hazel had tickets to those first Super Bowl games and they were twenty dollars apiece."

When McCabe talks about his close relationship with Hazel and Aylward mentions with great sadness that he recently flew back north to attend the funeral of his close friend Ed Dick, I sense that it's time to talk about our memories before touching on what you sometimes begin to think about when you are 60, 70, or approaching 80, and so many loved ones, friends and mentors in life are gone.

"I remember that Coach

Hazel would open the high school gym late at night, and the kids who had nothing would come and play basketball all night," remembers Aylward. Hazel has been gone for many years now, but the imprint of his toughness combined with a crackling sense of humor has left its mark on generations of coaches.

McCabe is asked about his beloved wife of over 50 years Beverly, who passed away two years ago. His voice cracks and his eyes brim with tears before he pauses to collect himself.

"She was the best. If it wasn't for Beverly McCabe, I might have ended up not doing the right thing in life," says McCabe. He then tells a story of when his wife spent the night with Aylward's dad at the Lahey Clinic in Burlington before he passed away many years ago. "She called me and told me to bring her some clothes -- I'm staying with dad Aylward through the night."

"She was an unbelievable lady," offers Aylward. "I don't know how she put up with him for all those years."

Our tears have quickly been replaced by laughter. McCabe takes the time to explain his red Boston University Terrier t-shirt to the couple from New Hampshire sitting next to us. By the time we take care of the afternoon's tab, they have gotten an earful. It's vintage McCabe, but we aren't quite finished. What did we all think about the subject of mortality?

"I don't worry about it, because I am going to live forever," says McCabe, who by this point in the afternoon seems to have discovered the secret of immortality. "I'm going to be able to say that I saw Coach Aylward, and he looked good, but he's starting to fade a little bit." More hearty laughter ensues. It's time for a final thought from the man responsible for the blast-furnace of tenacity that I feel in my heart and soul every day of my life.

"Today is the oldest that you have ever been, and the youngest that you will ever be," concludes Coach Aylward.

My old coach has left me feeling like I could swim a mile or run straight through a brick wall. I always knew that there was a reason that I will call these two men 'coach' until the day that I die. This was just another 'coaching moment' in an afternoon full of incredible moments. It is a day that I will never forget.

Curtis takes no-hitter into 9th, strikes out 15

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com
Heading into Saturday's game with St. Michael's, Assumption College pitcher Mike Curtis had already been off to a fine start to his sophomore season, having performed well in his three previous outings, improving each time out as he looked to improve on what had been a promising freshman season last year.

But on Saturday afternoon the Wilmington native took his game to an entirely new level with an outstanding performance, pitching his best game as a collegian, as the 2014 Wilmington High graduate dominated the Purple Knights on his way to a 4-1 victory, taking a no-hitter into the ninth inning while striking out 15 batters along the way.

Just how good was Curtis on Saturday? Well, so good that even he did not realize just how dominant he was during the course of the game, not even realizing that his no-hitter was still intact in the ninth inning before St. Michael's finally touched him for a one out single and eventually scored a run.

"I knew I was pitching well, but you don't really think about that when you are on the mound," Curtis said. "I was more disappointed to have lost the shutout. To get a shutout in college baseball, especially in a league as good as the Northeast 10 is very difficult, so I wanted to get that, but I didn't realize I had a no-hitter."

Assumption coach Mike Rocco, a former Tewksbury High star now in his third season as head coach of the Greyhounds, did not realize Curtis had a no-hitter going either, until he was notified by the Assumption Sports Information Director in the eighth inning, but he did know that Curtis was having a spectacular game.

"He was doing everything you tell a pitcher to do," Rocco said. "He was pounding the strike zone and getting ahead of hitters. His fastball was alive and he was locating his off speed stuff really well. He just had a great game. He was kind of thrown into the fire last season as a freshman, but I think that kind of made him realize what he had to do to compete at this level and he has come back strong this season."

Curtis credits Rocco for helping him with his early season success, and for motivating him to keep getting better.

"He is pretty intense and I love playing for him," Curtis said. "He doesn't beat around the bush, he lets you know your role and what is expected of you. He does a good job preparing you for the season and letting you know what are going to be facing. He is always working with us to help us improve."

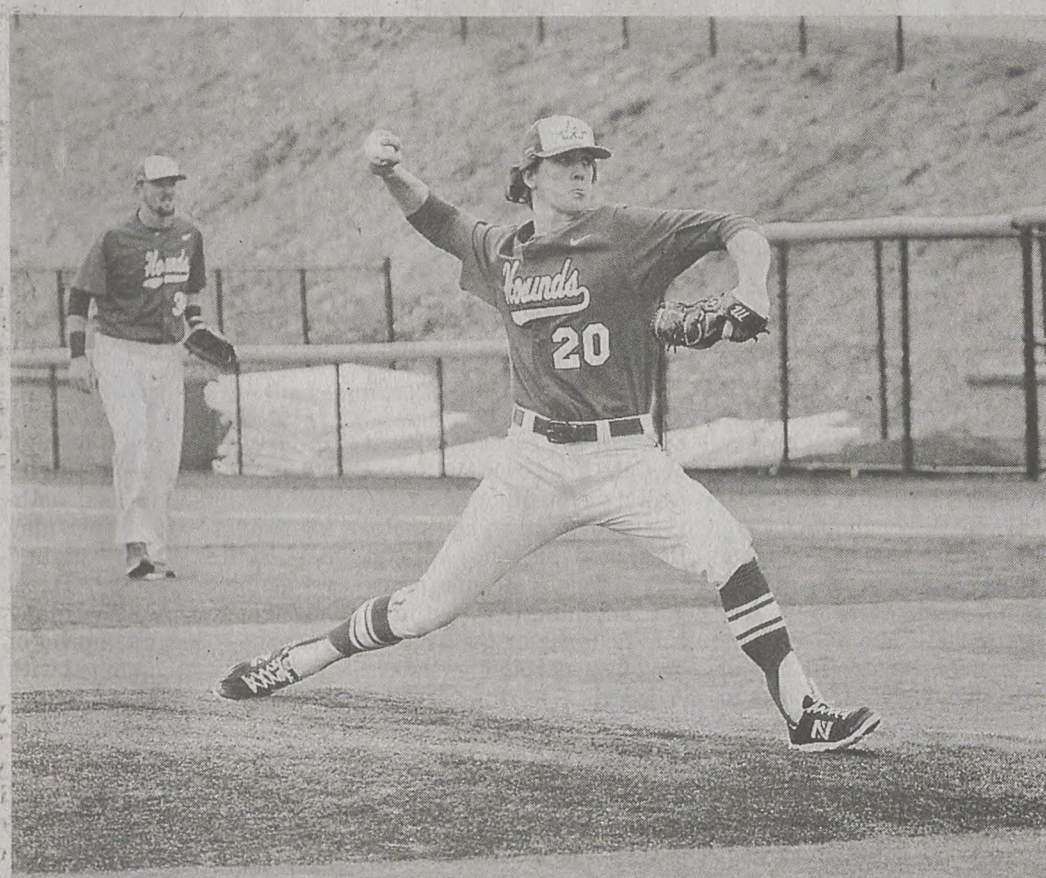

Curtis was certainly better than he has ever been on Saturday, striking out the side in the first inning, and whiffing seven batters through the first three innings on his way to his 15 strikeout effort. Curtis credits his ability to change speeds effectively in helping keep the St. Michael's batters off balance.

"I was pretty much commanding my fastball the whole game, but what really helped was throwing my curve and changeup with confidence," Curtis said. "That definitely makes a difference keeping the hitters off balance, and it was very effective for me. I knew I struck out the side in the first, but I didn't realize how many I had during the game."

Curtis, who is now 2-1 on the season with a 2.49 ERA, and was named Assumption Athlete of the Week for his efforts on Saturday, is hoping to build on Saturday's incredible performance for the rest of the season, and is also hoping that the rest of his team can continue to build on their strong start to league play.

Curtis is particularly excited to see how the Greyhounds pitching staff, including fellow sophomore Tom Horstkotte can progress throughout the season. Horstkotte threw a complete game in the first game of the Saturday's doubleheader in a 7-3 Assumption win, helping to motivate Curtis along the way.

"This I definitely something I can build on. And seeing Tom throw a complete game in the first game definitely gave me a little motivation. It brings out a little competitiveness," Curtis said. "I think the whole team can build on this. Not only are we 4-1 in our league, but we are also 3-0 in our division, so that is very big for us. Hopefully this can be a turning point for us."

Rocco is certainly confident that his young pitcher, along with his team, can continue to improve.

"He has thrown pretty well in all of his starts this year, but of course we wouldn't mind seeing a few more like that," Rocco said. "I think the team can have a very good year. The guys have worked extremely hard and it is playing off on the field so far. The Northeast 10 is a very tough conference, but if we can continue to play the way we are now I think we will be in a position for a playoff spot, and then anything can happen."

Four local athletes take part in Women in Sports Day event

By BRENDAN FOLEY
Sports Correspondent

BrendanMFoley@Outlook.com

BOSTON- Four local high school female student-athletes traveled to Boston last week to take part in the annual Women in Sports Day event.

Representing Tewksbury were close friends Ashley Colarusso and Amanda Aylward, and from Wilmington were another pair of buddies, Sam Pitzi and Julia Gake.

The Massachusetts Celebration is held yearly as a tie-in with the National Girls and Women in Sport Day (NGWSD), which began in 1987 as a day to remember Olympic volleyball player Flo Hyman for her athletic achievements and her work to assure equality for women's sports said the press release from the Massachusetts

Interscholastic Athletic Association, before adding, Hyman died of Marfan's Syndrome in 1986.

The release went on to say that, "Since that time, NGWSD has evolved into a day celebrated in all 50 states to acknowledge the past and recognize current sports achievements, the positive influence of sports participation, and the continuing struggle for equality and access for women in sports."

This year's celebration boasted guest speaker Maura Driscoll, national broadcaster, reporter, and former elite gymnast, and provided awards to distinguished recipients like Elizabeth Haygood, Terry Riley, Pat Ruggiero, and Judy Schneider.

Aylward and Colarusso were front and center for the celebration.

"All the speakers, the way everyone was listening to them, you could tell they had worked so hard to get where they are," Aylward said. "All the speakers, it didn't even matter what sport they were talking about, it was all so relatable. It all came down to hard work. All of them really hit home."

"Just getting to see how sports has changed over the years for women, and how much more we get to do because of women who stepped up," Colarusso said. "Now, we play almost with equality."

Pitzi attended the celebration with Gake and she was also impressed by what she saw.

"They talked about women empowerment and how sports can better your life," Pitzi said. "They talked about all the opportunities that you have afterwards, all the skills that you can use in your life."

Pitzi, who participates in soccer in the fall and winter and spring track was inspired by the advances women had made through the years, recalling how one speaker described a time when women could not be left alone to play basketball together, for fear of being too fragile.

Gake is a three-sport athlete, who played volleyball in the fall before leading the WHS Girls Indoor Track team to its first ever league championship title this past winter. She was a league all-star in the 600, and will look to continue that success in the spring.

For Colarusso and Aylward, the event was all the more rewarding given their longtime friendship. The duo first met in eighth grade when they played on the same basketball team. Even after they left that sport behind, the two, now seniors, have preserved that bond.

"Ashley's been my best friend since eighth grade. We played on the same basketball team and ever since then we have been inseparable," Aylward said. "It just goes to show how much being teammates sticks with you and impacts your life."

The stories of perseverance and female strength took on even greater meaning as Aylward and Colarusso were able to hear them while sitting right next to the person who inspired them the most.

"It definitely helped having her along the way," Aylward said. "We've supported each other all the way up. It's good to always have her, to have someone who has the same motives as you."

"It was awesome. In sports and in real life, we push each other to be better," Colarusso said. "We are both very competitive, so sharing that with her has made us both even more determined in sports."

The two have pushed each other to greater and greater heights. Colarusso was a captain on this year's soccer team and was a key member of the team's strong season that ended in the second round of the state tournament.

Colarusso was also critical to the outdoor track team's Division 3 Eastern Mass Championship.

For her part, Aylward has made major contributions to the field hockey team and the lacrosse team, of which she is a captain.

Aylward is not committed to any school, but she is leaning towards attending Sacred Heart for occupational therapy, while Colarusso has committed to run track at Stonehill College.

As they look to the road ahead, both Aylward and Colarusso are hopeful that sports will continue to be a major role in their lives.

"I really hope they stay a part of my life. Sports keep me on track," Colarusso said.

Fiorello continues to toss up first places for UMass-Lowell

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com
Our weekly look at Tewksbury College athletes starts with track and field, where UMass Lowell junior John Fiorello had a big day at the UMass Lowell Invitational on Saturday, taking a first place finish in the shot put with a throw of 50-05.25, and following that up with a second place finish in the discus with a throw of 180-02.

Fitchburg State junior Brian Amaral earned a third place finish in the 5,000 meters on Saturday at the Bears Track & Field Invitational, finishing in a time of 15:49.11.

Freshmen Joseph and Anthony Darrigo also had strong showings in the 5,000 meters at the Bears Track & Field Invitational. Joseph took a seventh place finish in the field of 20 runners in a time of 16:28.86, with Anthony following close behind, taking eight place in a time of 16:43.81.

Franklin Pierce junior

Cory Cataldo placed second in the 400-meter hurdles, with a time of 58.16 seconds at the Wesleyan Spring Classic at Wesleyan University on Saturday.

Cataldo and his teammates also earned a fifth place finish in the 4x400 relay in a time of 3:38.74.

Franklin Pierce sophomore Peter Murray also had a strong performance at the Wesleyan Spring Classic, taking a ninth place finish out of 32 competitors in the shot put with a top throw of 38-02.75. Murray also took 11th in the hammer throw with a top distance of 116-05.

Franklin Pierce freshman Anthony Barinelli also competed in the Wesleyan Spring Classic, making his college debut for outdoor track by finishing 25th in the 3,000 meters in a time of 9:42.44.

Bucknell senior Jess Bridle was named the Patriot League Female Track Athlete of the Week, following an impressive performance at the Jim Taylor Invitational on Saturday in Selinsgrove, Pennsylvania.

The former Tewksbury High star picked up where she left off following a fantastic indoor season, winning the 200-meter title, finishing first in a field of 44 runners with an ECAC-qualifying time of 24.70. The time was the third fastest in program history and the second best mark in the Patriot League this season.

Bridle, along with teammates Kafilat Oladiran, Carly Reiner and Kimberley Lapszynski, also won the 4x100 relay, out pacing the field in a time of 48.14.

Regis College freshman Cassie Froio finished 35th in a field of 68 competitors in the 100-meter dash at the Bears Track & Field Invitational at Bridgewater State University on Saturday, finishing in a time of 14.49 seconds.

UMass Lowell sophomore Jessica Amedee raced to an eighth place finish in the 200 meters at the UMass Lowell Invitational on Saturday, finishing in a time of 27.71 seconds. Amedee also finished first in the 100 meter hurdles in a time of 15.80 seconds.

In softball action, Framingham State junior shortstop Tiffanie Marsh went 1-for-3 with a walk in the Rams 4-3 victory over Lesley University last Thursday in the first game of a doubleheader. She followed that up by going 1-for-3 with a double and a run scored in the second game, an 8-1 Framingham loss.

Marsh is now batting .316 on the season.

Newbury College senior catcher Sherri Liggiero went 1-for-3 with a double, two walks and three runs scored in an 11-10 loss to Emerson in the first game of a doubleheader on Saturday. She came back strong in the second game as well, going 2-for-5 with two RBI's and a run scored in an 11-8 loss for the Nighthawks.

Liggiero is currently batting .467 on the season, with 12 RBI's, 16 runs scored and five stolen bases, leading the team in all categories except RBI's, where she is second on the team.

Southern Connecticut State shortstop Arianna Medeiros was 1-for-3 with a walk, an RBI and two runs scored in a 12-4 win over Dowling on Tuesday afternoon. Medeiros, the Owls leadoff hitter, is now batting a team best .345 on the season, with five doubles, two home runs and six RBI's.

St. Anselm sophomore first baseman Shannon McLaughlin was 2-for-3 with two RBI's and a run scored on Saturday during a 6-5 win over Stonehill. McLaughlin is now batting .217 on the season with three RBI's and seven runs scored.

University of New England freshman second baseman Anna Sessa scored a run for the Nor'easters as part of a 15-2 win over Wentworth in the first game of a doubleheader last Wednesday afternoon. Sessa entered the second game of the twin bill as a pinch hitter and drew a walk as part of a 9-1 UNE win.

University of New England sophomore shortstop Erin Walsh also contributed to the doubleheader sweep for the Nor'easters, going 1-for-1 with a run scored in the 15-2 Game 1 win, and going 1-for-2 with an RBI in the 9-1 win in the night cap.

Westfield State senior first baseman Jamie Ricciardi was 2-for-3 with an RBI and a run scored in a 12-2 win over Bay Path last Wednesday. Ricciardi is now batting .353 on the season.

Moving to baseball, Southern New Hampshire catcher Cam Oliveira was 1-for-3 in a 1-0 PenMen win over Bentley on Saturday. It was one of only three hits in the game for the Penmen, who improved to 18-2 with the win.

In lacrosse action, Rivier University sophomore defender Emily Knoops had three ground ball pickups, a caused turnover, and a shot on goal in a 13-8 loss to Fitchburg State last Thursday. Knoops had two more ground ball pickups and two more caused turnovers on Saturday in a 17-15 loss to Simmons College.

Rivier sophomore attack Taylor Lirakis had two goals for the Raiders in 17-15 loss to Simmons, to go along with two ground ball pickups and a caused turnover. Lirakis now has ten goals and five assists on the season, and her 15 points are the third most on the team.

Westfield State sophomore midfielder Hayley Sutherland and her Lancers teammates rolled to an 18-6 win over Hope College last Wednesday, improving to 4-4 on the season. Sutherland has now played in six of the Lancers eight games.

Franklin Pierce senior defender Dylan Leone had three ground ball pickups, caused an opponent's turnover and also had a shot on goal in the Ravens 16-5 win over AIC on Saturday. Leone has now started all five games this season for the Ravens, and is second on the team with ten ground ball pickups.

Salem State freshman attack David Dempsey had a goal and an assist for the Vikings in a 10-9 loss to Lasell on Saturday. Dempsey now has ten goals and eight assists on the season and his 18 points are the third most on the team.

Lasell freshman defender David Sheehan had four ground ball pickups, and caused four opponent's turnovers in the Lasers 10-9 win over Salem State on Saturday.

It was just the latest in an impressive start to Sheehan's college career, as he has now started all seven games this season, and leads the team in both ground ball pickups with 24, and caused turnovers with 20.

Fellow Lasell defender Mike Pino is also having an impressive season for the 5-2 Lasers, with 15 ground ball pickups and ten caused turnovers. Pino is also a captain this season for the Lasers.

Regis College sophomore midfielder Brandon Hibner and his Pride teammates are off to a 5-2 start to the season, with their most recent win coming in a 19-2 win over Green Mountain College last Wednesday. Hibner has now played in four of the Pride's seven games this season.

Rivier University freshman midfielder Sean Brady had two assists on Saturday in a 16-10 Raiders win over Mitchell College. Brady has now played in six of seven games this season for the 5-2 Raiders.

Two Tewksbury legends talk about life in Florida

at Tewksbury High School, Aylward compiled a 120-56-6 record with six Merrimack Valley Conference Championships and two Super Bowl titles in four appearances.

"I always felt so grateful that the Tewksbury system hired me back in 1974," Aylward remembers. "I saw first-hand on film and in the games the toughness and athletic ability of the Tewksbury kids. When the job opened up, I didn't hesitate to go for it, and I was lucky enough to get it."

Aylward quickly had the team winning in those first years on the job, going to the Super Bowl twice and bringing a championship home to Tewksbury. He left town from 1990-94 to coach at Nashua High School, where he was 35-19 with four Division 2 playoff appearances. He returned to Tewksbury in 1995 to lead the Redmen to two more Super Bowls and another championship. Bob also served as athletic director and assistant principal at the high school. Aylward, who will soon turn 70, decided that it was time to retire back in 2007. He left a legacy that includes an induction into the Massachusetts High School Football Association Hall of Fame in 2001.

His friend McCabe reminds him not so subtly that it was often the younger man who was supplying the veteran with some sage coaching advice. "He turned the football program around. If it wasn't for Bobby Aylward, in my opinion -- and I don't cut corners -- he turned that program around and made them champions," offers McCabe. "When I was coaching, I took a quote from Bobby Aylward and I'm usually the one with the big mouth. 'Tewksbury-Home of the Champions.' You instill that in the kids from day one in practice. Bobby believes it and I believe it. Any time that Tewksbury loses a game, I believe that it's an upset, I don't care who we are playing."

Aylward and McCabe often have turned to each other for advice over the years. They quickly became friends when Aylward arrived in Tewksbury, and it's obvious that McCabe appreciated the fact that his friend always had his back, especially when some of McCabe's coaching methods were questioned by someone who didn't quite get just where the veteran hockey coach was coming from.

"I would take a player off the bench between periods and explain why he had made a mistake," he said. "That player would come back in the next period and play a magnificent game. It was like a magic wand had come over his head. I don't know if you could do that with a kid nowadays. But you could always do that with a Tewksbury kid. Every kid that I see today -- and I don't want to start crying now -- they will say, coach McCabe, you were the best. Players who played for me, I love them to death and I will go to my grave trying to help them out if they ever have a problem in life -- and I know that Bobby is the same way."

McCabe was different in that when it came time to cut players from the team before the start of every season, he would never post names on a bulletin board -- a system that for years was commonplace in most high school varsity sports. He would always talk to each player individually, explaining why he did not have what it takes to make the varsity team. For many players, it would mark the end of their high school hockey careers. For the players who made the grade, they were blessed to have a coach who cared enough about them to see that there was life after hockey. "One-hundred percent of the players that played for me were offered a college education somewhere," says McCabe, with understandable pride.

McCabe's coaching system

was unconventional to some, and Aylward, who by this time was the high school's director of athletics, would go to bat for the hockey coach with parents or members of the school's administration. "He is younger than me, but he taught me some lessons," said McCabe with more than just a little humility.

While Aylward had to become a better politician at times when he moved to the administrative side of the school system, he always had coaching running deep in his emotional blood. He knew that no matter what job he held, if he led properly, the Tewksbury kids would soon follow.

"The Tewksbury kid has always been extremely coachable, with very little parental interference," said Aylward. "The trust of the community has been great. There really is a special pride there. Our kids in Tewksbury are absolutely the best. They are hard-working, they ask for nothing, and they give you everything that they have."

PLAYERS WOULD LISTEN AND LEARN

Aylward went on to talk about his first team at Tewksbury in 1974, led by co-captains Mike King and Steve Flagg. I played with both King and Flagg on a team that won just two games in 1972. I can remember players on that team asking me just what this new coach was all about. They were concerned that Aylward was asking them to do too much, too soon. They were questioning whether they were up to the task and whether the new guy was even ready to get them to where they wanted to go. I told them at the time to essentially be quiet and pay attention. Aylward remembers with some emotion those first Friday night meetings at the high school with that group of players.

"I told my coaches at the time that you have got to treat every kid like he's royalty. It's as simple as that. There are no excuses. That's the way that we are going to do things moving forward. These kids don't know how good they are or how bad they are. I wanted a fresh start with these kids. It was a no-nonsense approach. I promised the kids that we would be more prepared than any team we played, guaranteed. The coaching staff would stay up until two or three in the morning if that's what it took. I told them they would have all the information that they could possibly need."

That first Aylward team began the 1974 season 5-0 before finishing 5-4-1. Scott Darby would take the season's opening kickoff to the house for a touchdown. It was a rollicking start for a group of players so accustomed to heartbreaking defeat. Aylward remembers tight end/linebacker Richard Sullivan asking him if the team was capable of winning five games. "Why can't we win ten games, Richard?" Aylward asked Sullivan. "Why can't we? Why not?"

It's obvious that Aylward has a soft spot for that first Tewksbury team in 1974. He mentions his first great running back Rick Mackey and his first quarterback Tom Sullivan. Jim Panzino was a player who was looking for leadership, and when he found it, his attitude and self-confidence took flight. I remember it well. The conversation turned to what Aylward had done for a downtrodden kid with a stutter. It could have been Panzino. It could have been me. In reality, it was the both of us. We both have Aylward to thank for this emotionally charged jumpstart.

When Panzino heard that I was working on some background for this story, he sent me a Facebook message. "A little-known story was that I had to get a waiver to play high school sports because of a congenital heart defect. It didn't stop me. I had to get a mechanical valve in 2005. I give coach Aylward all the credit for that strength. Then in 2009, I broke the T10 vertebrae in my back. Again, coach Aylward's teaching helped me to fight through this. I believe in Tewksbury Tough."

By 1976, the Redmen were competing for a berth in the first Schoolboy Super Bowl. Tewksbury and Andover were both 5-0 that season, with a big game set for Tewksbury's rundown dirt field/mud bowl at the Center School. Tewksbury Superintendent of Schools John Wynn suggested that the Redmen football team should play the game at Andover's field. Aylward just might have been channeling some McCabe at that moment in 1976. He would have none of this idea. He somehow pulled his emotions together and let Wynn know exactly how he felt about the situation.

"I said to him, if it's OK for our kids to play on that field, why isn't it OK for the Andover kids? Think about what you are saying to me. Mr. Wynn, if the team plays this game in Andover, they will do it without their head coach. Then I walked out of the room. I thought that I had made a very strong point, and we played the game at home. We cancelled the game because of the weather and we played on a beautiful Sunday afternoon."

Tewksbury won that day 7-0 when Jay Petros scored the game's lone touchdown. That team was led by the play of youngsters with typical Tewksbury heart. They included nose tackle 'Fuzzy' Petros, linebacker Rick McGillick, defensive end Billy Ashe and Brian Wolfe of television's 'Cry Wolfe' at quarterback.

Like Aylward, McCabe got his teams believing that they should be 'the best of the best'. He challenged them to shake up the high school hockey world and actually defeat a Division One Catholic School. McCabe says that his greatest high school victory was a 4-2 win over Matignon.

"My dream was always to take a little Division Two team and win the Division One Tournament. That was my dream in coaching and in life, to knock off the best high school hockey team in the country."

REASONABLE EXPECTATIONS

Both McCabe and Aylward are content in the fact that they have left the next generation of Tewksbury High School student-athletes in more-than-capable hands. Derek Doherty took over behind the TMHS hockey bench in 2001 and Brian Aylward has been the varsity football coach since 1997. The many banners hanging in the sparkling new TMHS gymnasium attest to the fact that the school remains championship-driven in all the right ways. Included in those ways is the annual College Recruitment Night, where many Division 1 and 2 colleges along with some prep schools come to the Tewksbury Country Club to provide valuable information for local high school football players. This leads to our conversation about reasonable expectations for graduating Tewksbury High School athletes.

Aylward has spent some of his time here in South Florida checking out the various football clinics for information that might help his son Brian with the Redmen football players today. This all goes into the idea that even in retirement, the senior Aylward is interested in checking out just what might be going on in the 'new and improved' coaching circles outside of Massachusetts.

"You have to remember that you are responsible for kids from when they are 14-years-old to almost 19. Sometimes that can be an overwhelming responsibility. The Tewksbury kids would always kill themselves to be the best that they could be. You would only assume that at the next level that they would do the same thing," says Aylward. "I was always one hundred percent honest with any kid that played for me," says McCabe. "I would tell them that no, you won't be going to that particular college because you don't have that kind of ability."

While most TMHS athletes might not always be headed to Notre Dame, most are assured of a fine college education if they do the right thing by listening to coaches the caliber of Derek Doherty and Brian Aylward. Both coaches have learned from the best-of-the-best in McCabe and the senior Aylward.

The change in the town and the type of athlete playing sports at the high school hasn't really shifted the level of focus that is required, according to McCabe and Aylward.

"The change has been gradual and consistent. It has gone from being essentially a farming community (in the 1930's) to more people coming from the city. We still get the hard-nosed kids that aren't babied. They have parents that expect them to do it on their own and to do the best that they can. We are blessed to have a kid the quality of Derek Doherty to succeed Coach McCabe and Brian Aylward -- call it nepotism or whatever you want -- he's legitimate. He's paid his dues all the way through. He has never got anything for nothing. Now he is seeing the fruits of his labor, absolutely," offers Aylward.

ENJOYING LIFE IN FLORIDA

"In my lifetime I have always been grateful that I'm alive and that I had a job," admits Aylward as we watch people saunter past us coming back from a day at the beach. "It's simple, but important. That's the way that I always felt as a football coach, and that's the way that I feel today. I ask my kids for permission to come here every year. It's a guilty pleasure. I'm grateful. I always was, and I still am."

McCabe vacationed for 40 winters in Pompano Beach, and for many years he loved going to college football bowl games, even attending the last Super Bowl played here in South Florida six years ago when the New Orleans Saints upset the Indianapolis Colts.

"My nephew got us tickets to that game, and the prices for that game were off-the-charts. I know that he paid thousands of dollars for those tickets," remembers McCabe. "I've seen arguably the best college football teams in the country at one time or another."

McCabe would start as far north as Atlanta and work his way through Florida, catching the best bowl games that college football had to offer. He has just one regret in that he missed a certain great Wyoming Cowboy linebacker play in the biggest games of his college football playing career. "I didn't get to see those Wyoming games that Bobby played in, but I would have given my right arm to have seen one of those games. I couldn't see all those games today because those prices have gone off the charts so that the average fan like me can't go to those games. I remember that Charlie Hazel had tickets to those first Super Bowl games and they were twenty dollars apiece."

When McCabe talks about his close relationship with Hazel and Aylward mentions with great sadness that he recently flew back north to attend the funeral of his close friend Ed Dick, I sense that it's time to talk about our memories before touching on what you sometimes begin to think about when you are 60, 70, or approaching 80, and so many loved ones, friends and mentors in life are gone.

"I remember that Coach

Hazel would open the high school gym late at night, and the kids who had nothing would come and play basketball all night," remembers Aylward. Hazel has been gone for many years now, but the imprint of his toughness combined with a crackling sense of humor has left its mark on generations of coaches.

McCabe is asked about his beloved wife of over 50 years Beverly, who passed away two years ago. His voice cracks and his eyes brim with tears before he pauses to collect himself.

"She was the best. If it wasn't for Beverly McCabe, I might have ended up not doing the right thing in life," says McCabe. He then tells a story of when his wife spent the night with Aylward's dad at the Lahey Clinic in Burlington before he passed away many years ago. "She called me and told me to bring her some clothes -- I'm staying with dad Aylward through the night."

"She was an unbelievable lady," offers Aylward. "I don't know how she put up with him for all those years."

Our tears have quickly been replaced by laughter. McCabe takes the time to explain his red Boston University Terrier t-shirt to the couple from New Hampshire sitting next to us. By the time we take care of the afternoon's tab, they have gotten an earful. It's vintage McCabe, but we aren't quite finished. What did we all think about the subject of mortality?

"I don't worry about it, because I am going to live forever," says McCabe, who by this point in the afternoon seems to have discovered the secret of immortality. "I'm going to be able to say that I saw Coach Aylward, and he looked good, but he's starting to fade a little bit." More hearty laughter ensues. It's time for a final thought from the man responsible for the blast-furnace of tenacity that I feel in my heart and soul every day of my life.

"Today is the oldest that you have ever been, and the youngest that you will ever be," concludes Coach Aylward.

My old coach has left me feeling like I could swim a mile or run straight through a brick wall. I always knew that there was a reason that I will call these two men 'coach' until the day that I die. This was just another 'coaching moment' in an afternoon full of incredible moments. It is a day that I will never forget.
